FROM ALBANY.

Repeal of the Erie Classification by the Senate.

The House Accords to It a Third Reading.

Hearing of Arguments Against the New-York Charter.

Earnest Debate on the Pro-Rata Freight Bill.

Relief to a Sufferer by the July Riot.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Thursday, March 14, 1872.

The discussion on the Erie Repeal bill, which was the feature of the Senate proceedings yesterday, was transferred to the Assembly today, where the same bill had been made the special order immediately after the Troy charter. The charter occupied an hour or more, after which the Erie bill was opened by the presentation of a communication from the new directors of the Company, which was read by the Clerk, and which asked for the passage of the bill now pending before the Legislature, without reference to the change that had occurred in the management of the Erie Railroad. The Clerk then read the first section of the bill, and Mr. HUSTED opened the discussion by moving a slight amendment to make the section conform to the bill ordered to a third reading yesterday in the Senate. He said that he was the only member of the present Assembly who voted against the Classification act when it passed the Legislature in 1869, that he denounced it then, and had continued to denounce it ever since, and had availed himself of every opportunity to procure its repeal. He had introduced a bill to repeal it this session, the motive and object of which had been impugned at the time, but which sought ultimately to attain the same end as the bill now before the House. He heartily supported the present bill, and gave notice that he should move amendments to it as the reading progressed, which should make it conform word for word with the Senate bill.

D. B. HILL, of Elmira, then took the floor, and made a lengthy argument in opposition to the bill and in favor of the present (or late) management of the Erie Railroad. He was far more temperate and reasonable in its remarks than Mr. MADDEN, who figured as the champion of the Erie Ring in the Senate yesterday, but he advanced no new argument, and it was evident that the only object of his speech was to bring himself in favor with the voters on the line of the Erie Road, who have been sending up their bugbear remonstrances against allowing the concern to go into the hands of a "British monopoly." The draft of his talk was that the road had been managed to suit the people living on its line; that they had not asked for this law; that it was a thing that concerned them more than anybody else, and as long as they were satisfied the people in other sections of the State had no business to interfere.

Mr. HUSTED replied to this argument by saying that he had no doubt that the men who had been in the habit of procuring all the money they wanted from the savings banks in New-York on worthless securities, were perfectly satisfied with the management of these banks; but how was it with the depositors, when they found their money all gone, and the doors of the banks closed?

Mr. NILES and Mr. ALBERGER next addressed the House in support of the bill, and were followed by Speaker SMITH, who gave a brief review of the management of the Erie Corporation under the reign of GOULD and FISK, their secret and illegal issue of stock, and the misappropriation of the moneys scarping therefrom, &c., &c. He then took up the moral aspects of the question, and spoke of the widespread corruption and demoralization that had ensued from this Erie Ring, and the baleful effects upon the morals of the community of the example set by its unprincipled and licentious leaders. It had brought a stigma upon the Commonwealth that every member of this Assembly, representing its honor and its interests, ought to be anxious to wipe out. It had even dragged the judicial ermine through its slough of corruption, and brought two of the Judges of the highest Court of the State, to answer charges of malfeasance, which, in the opinion of a large part of the community, should result in their impeachment. He would not do such injustice to the people living in the southern tier of counties as to believe that if they thoroughly understood this question they would send petitions here asking for the continuance in power of this infamous Ring.

At the close of Speaker SMITH's remarks, the House took a recess till evening. By general consent, the discussion on the merits of the whole bill was allowed to proceed on the motion to amend the first section. Mr. ALVORD, who occupied the chair, ruled the discussion out of order, if any one objected, but no objection was made, and the discussion will probably be concluded at the evening session, before proceeding any further with the reading of the bill. The design is to amend the bill, so as to make it a certain copy of the Senate bill, and in that shape it will be ordered to a third reading by a large majority.

THE POLICE COURT BILL.

Police Justices HOGAN and SHANDLEY are here with their counsel, CHAS. S. SPENCER, to oppose the bill for reorganizing the Police Courts of New-York City. A hearing was had before the Judiciary Committee this afternoon, when Mr. SPENCER undertook to show by a recent decision of the Court of Appeals that the bill was unconstitutional, and that the present Justices could not be legislated out of office before the expiration of their terms of office.

RELIEF FOR A SOLDIER'S WIDOW.

The bill appropriating $5,000 to Mrs. WYATT, the widow of a member of the Ninth Regiment N. G., who was killed in the July riots last Summer, has passed the Assembly. It was the first Appropriation bill that passed the House this session.

THE PRO-RATA RAILROAD ACT.

The Senate had another protracted and somewhat heated debate, this morning, on another bill affecting a great railroad corporation—the Pro-rata Freight bill being the special order. The bill is no stranger to the Legislature, having been here in one form or another for a good many years. Its promoters are people living along the line of the Central Railroad, who have a long-standing complaint against that corporation, growing out of the fact that it discriminates unfairly against them in the matter of freights, charging them absolutely higher rates for carrying freight a few miles between points on the line of the road than it charges on freight carried its entire length. Mr. VANDERBILT and a large company of the officers and directors of the Central were in attendance in the Senate Chamber, anxiously watching the progress of the debate. The bill is a very short one. Its material section provides that "no railroad company doing business in this State shall, after the passage of this act, charge, receive, or collect any greater sum for transporting freight over a portion of their road than they charge for carrying the same class of freight over the entire line of their road." It has had a curious history so far this session. It was introduced early in February. The Railroad Committee heard one argument in favor of it, and three against it. The report was disagreed to after a sharp skirmish in the Senate, and the bill ordered to the Committee of the Whole, and today it has to come up as a special order.

Senator TREMAIN moved to recommit the bill to the Railroad Committee, as parties wished to be heard upon it. Mr. JOHNSON strenuously opposed this reference. He denounced it as an idiotic attempt to kill the bill, spoke of the great power of railroad corporations in the Legislature, and said that if this bill was killed the present Legislature would lose all its prestige as a reform body. Mr. MADDEN, ever foremost in acting as champion of the railroad interests, stated that the reference might be made. He took occasion to repeat a portion of the speech which he made so many times yesterday, denouncing the Erie repeal as a "bill of abominations," and constituted this one very much such another. Senator LOWREY urged immediate action. He said the Central, by its discrimination on short freights, was destroying the business interests of Central New-York. He stated, on his own knowledge, that his relatives in Utica had been obliged to send goods destined for Chicago first to New-York, and from there to Chicago, and had saved money by it.

Mr. WOODIN made a good point on Mr. MADDEN. He obliged him to confess that the parties making a scheming were those opposing the bill, and exposed the absurdity of asking to hear a committee which had already denied it adversely, to enable them to hear more arguments against it.

Mr. MURPHY made an ingenious speech in favor of recommitting, and the Senate decided to take that course, first amending the resolution so as to require the committee to report one week from today, a limitation which was extraordinarily imperitable to Mr. MADDEN and the majority of the committee.

ERIE IN THE SENATE.

An attempt was made today to put the Erie bill on its third reading, but Mr. MADDEN objected to his feet and expressed an intention to talk till midnight rather than allow this to be done. The Senate having had a terrible experience at the gentleman's oratorical powers yesterday, shrank from the fearful threat, and concluded to let the bill take its regular course. It will probably be put on its third reading tomorrow.

METROPOLITAN POLICE BILL.

Senator TREMAIN introduced today a bill to re-establish the old system of Metropolitan Police. He does not, however, desire to be committed in favor of reviving that defunct system.

NEW-YORK CITY BILLS REPORTED.

Pursuant to Controller GREEN's memorial, the Committee on Cities in the Senate reported the bill to amend the act to tax and license pawnbrokers on the principles of the Two per Cent. Tax Levy of 1871. The percentages authorized to be levied is increased from two per cent. to two and three-quarters per cent. of the assessed value of the real and personal property of the City. Also Mr. BERGEN's bill to open Delancey-street.

Repeal of the Erie Classification in the Senate.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 14.—The discussion on the Erie Repeal bill was resumed in the Assembly this evening, and continued till past midnight.

Messrs. VEDDER of Cattaraugus and SMITH of Tioga, opposed the bill, and Messrs. PRESTON of Chautauqua, FORT of Oswego, BROWN of Cayuga, and TILDEN of New-York, advocated it. Mr. PRESTON, who lives at the terminus of the Erie Road, said he had been threatened with political death if he voted for this bill, but he had no political aspirations whatever. He did not desire to be returned to the Assembly, but as long as he represented his district here he should vote for justice and right, regardless of threats from any and every quarter. He said that the remonstrances against the bill that had been sent here from his district were mainly gotten up by the employes of the Erie Railroad, and many men, to his knowledge, had been induced to sign their who, after learning all the facts, were anxious that their names should be erased from the remonstrance. At the conclusion of the discussion on the general merits of the bill, the remaining sections were read through and amended so as to correspond with the Senate bill, when it was ordered to a third reading by an overwhelming vote. The Assembly then adjourned.

In the Senate, the Erie bill was brought up for a third reading, and after several motions by Mr. MADDEN to refer it back to the Committee, with instructions to insert this or that amendment, it was read a third time and passed by a vote of 28 to 3, MADDEN and HARROWER alone voting in the negative. One amendment, however, was adopted, which prohibits a director in the Atlantic and Great Western Road from being also a director in the Erie. The same amendment was offered in the Assembly but voted down. In every other respect the bill passes as it came. A Committee of Conference will be necessary to harmonize the discrepancy before the bill is sent to the Governor.

ARGUMENT AGAINST THE NEW CHARTER.

The Senate Committee on Cities granted another and a final hearing, this afternoon, to the opponents of the Seventy's charter. The speakers were CHARLES P. SHAW and Judge EDMONDS, of New-York. Mr. SHAW's argument is represented as a very powerful one, and appears to have had some influence on the Committee, that all that has been said heretofore against the charter. He took the ground that the powers conferred by a charter for New-York should be restricted to those functions appertaining solely to the Municipal Government, and should not embrace, as they had heretofore done, such extensive jurisdiction and authority as would enable the City to control the State. The Police, the Board of Health, the Fire Department and Docks, he claimed had no business in the charter of the Committee of Seventy, or any other charter for New-York, but should be provided for by State Commissions. Judge EDMONDS spoke against the accumulative voting principle of the charter, and argued that it was unconstitutional. It is now stated that the charter will undergo some radical amendments before it is reported from the Committee. The feeling in favor of a Metropolitan Police had gained ground rapidly, and it is talk that the charter will not pass till the fate of the Metropolitan Police bill, introduced yesterday by Mr. THEMANN, is decided. Nearly all the Senators representing the proposed Metropolitan District are in favor of the bill, and it is asserted that it will receive the support of a majority of the whole Senate. S.

Legislative Proceedings.

SENATE.....ALBANY, Thursday, March 14.

The Chamber of Commerce sent in a petition in favor of the repeal of the Usury laws, stating that the use of money would be cheaper if there were no restrictions. Mr. ROBERTSON moved to lay aside the special order—the Pro Rata Railroad Freight bill—and all other orders down to the third reading of bills, in order that the bill repealing the Classification act might be read. Messrs. MADDEN and JOHNSON objected, and, under their assertion that they would avail themselves of the rule, the motion was withdrawn, and the Senate resumed the consideration of the special order.

RAILROAD WAY FREIGHT BILL.

Mr. JOHNSON made a lengthy speech in favor of the principle of the Pro Rata bill.

After Mr. JOHNSON had concluded, it was moved by Mr. MADDEN that the bill be recommitted to the Rail. road Committee.

Mr. WOODIN opposed the motion and the bill at length.

Mr. MURPHY sustained the motion, and was against the bill.

Mr. CRAPSEY also opposed progressing or recommitting, and went for the bill.

Mr. LOW said he was for the bill because he was against Classification, but he was for recommitting, in order that the Committee on Railroads might have the right on the record.

The motion to report progress prevailed—14 to 11.

Mr. WOODIN moved to discharge with the report of the Committee and send the bill to a third reading.

Mr. FALLON moved to recommit to the Railroad Committee.

Mr. WOODIN moved to instruct the Railroad Committee to report in one week. Carried—Yeas 17, nays 8.

As amended, the motion to recommit was carried—Yeas 16, nays 9. So the matter is postponed for one week.

BILLS REPORTED.

To make provision for a local government of the City of New-York; to repeal the act for a Sixth Judicial District; to facilitate the consolidation of the Mechanics' Institute of the City of New-York with other institutions; to incorporate the Improved Order of Free Masons of the City of New-York; to incorporate the Jerusalem Lodge of Free Masons; to incorporate the Harlem Lodge of Free Masons; to incorporate the Lexington Lodge of Free Masons; to incorporate the Ionic Lodge of Free Masons; to incorporate the Ionic Lodge of Free Masons; to incorporate the Ionic

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

There is no longer any doubt that the case in favor of an International copyright has broken down before the Joint Committee of Congress on the Library, to which it was referred. For nearly forty years such a measure has been urged upon Congress and the people by many of our most intelligent and eminent citizens, and especially by our leading authors. In all that time, although frequently arguing the question with effect before the people in their multitude, they never obtained a fair hearing for their views before Congress, and it was suspected by some of them that the opponents of the measure were bent on avoiding an open argument. Much sympathy was felt for the authors on this ground, and public opinion justly held that the question could never be regarded as finally settled until a careful and thorough examination should be made, by a competent tribunal, open to the testimony and reasonings of all parties concerned. Such an examination has now been made. The Library Committee of the present Congress, as a whole, has rarely been equalled in the ability and culture which adapt it for considering such questions. It has patiently sat, day after day, listening to arguments, reading correspondence, studying facts and statistics gathered from all sources, and thus collecting both the principles involved in the subject and the information necessary to apply them correctly. They have heard all that the advocates of international copyright could suggest, and all that its opponents had to offer against it. In short, their investigation of this subject has unquestionably been the most comprehensive and complete ever made; and it is plain to every man who has watched the progress of the hearing that the argument in favor of the legislation proposed is a failure. As far as the decision of the Committee is to be governed by the case set before them, they cannot fail to report against giving any further attention to the subject.

It is for the friends of a new law to prove that it ought to be passed. The friends of international copyright have seen fit to make their whole case rest on one assumption—that the author has an abstract and absolute right of property in his work, of which no Government or law can deprive him. Apart from existing laws, the sale of a book containing his writings, without his consent, is "piracy" and "robbery;" and, therefore, they claim, it is the binding duty of Congress to recognize and protect this right, which already exists by the law of a higher power. Readers who have followed the course of the discussion in newspapers and magazines, as well as the few who have attended the hearings of the Committee and read the briefs and published letters submitted to them, will easily recall to mind the fact that there has not been an argument in favor of any of the bills before the Committee which has not assumed this moral right of property in authorship as its basis. Incidentally, other ideas have been introduced, the arguments against any legislation have been examined and some attempts made to meet them; but the case of the petitioners for foreign copyright has, on the whole, been so completely interwoven with the assumption in question, that it must stand or fall with it. If foreign authors have no claim, which Congress is bound to protect, to the profits of republishing their books in this country, the argument offered for granting them a copyright disappears.

Their claim of a moral right is, at first thought and to superficial thinkers, a strong one. It takes hold of the people's moral sense. They love justice, and will not tolerate a violation of it in their name. The argument derived from this theory has accordingly made hosts of converts to the copyright movement, when urged before people not disposed to criticise it closely. But it was weakness itself to ask practical legislators for action on such grounds. What has Congress to do with abstract or individual standards of right? Let every member be convinced that the theory in question is true. Yet Congress has its standard in the letter and spirit of the Constitution, which defines its powers, and in the welfare of the whole people, which determines its exercise of them. The question before the Committee was two-fold. Is any form of international copyright constitutional? and, if so, is it for the good of the nation to adopt it? The opponents of the measure argued, with much plausibility, that every form of it is unconstitutional; they did very much toward proving that, even if adopted and sustained by the Courts, it would seriously interfere with the progress of intelligence, by making literature costly. Its advocates made but feeble attempts to show that under the Constitution, Congress can pass the measure in any form; and, in answer to the proofs of its inexpediency, they made no headway at all. In view of all this, the Committee have no choice but to dismiss the moral argument as irrelevant. Having to consider a constitutional and practical, not a moral question, they must, of course, disregard the convictions of "right" entertained by the eminent petitioners, and confine themselves to the boundaries of expediency and legality, which are the measure of statesmanship. Yet, dismissing this theory, they leave no case to the advocates of international copyright.

It seems that their opponents have taken no pains at all to their argument of right in authorship. This may be fair as a practical controversy, since, even if the argument had all the truth claimed for it, the Committee could not accept it as pertinent to the issue. Yet we cannot but wish that the question—whether the authors have the abstract and unconditional right of ownership in the books they have published—had been more carefully canvassed. If they have this right—and yet it is unconstitutional and inexpedient, or both, for Congress to protect it—the public conscience is placed in an awkward dilemma. Can it be that it is the duty of the statesman to violate the just convictions of the man? Are the moral obligations of the nation at war with its own intellectual growth, so that one of them must be sacrificed in order to fulfill the other? These questions may have nothing to do with the practical duty of our legislators, but they have, at least, a strong interest to every thoughtful mind. For ourselves, we do not believe in a conflict of duties, in an antagonism between patriotism and law; we refuse to recognize that justice and that honor when are violated by obeying the laws and by promoting the welfare of our country. If it be proved that a copyright given to foreign authors would retard instead of promoting "the progress of science and the useful arts" among the people, we shall hold that there is a flaw in the theory that authors have an inalienable right, after publishing their books, to control the circulation of them at their will.

And, indeed, much may be said against such a theory. It certainly has no foundation in "natural law," because a book is one of the most artificial and complex productions of modern civilization. In a state of nature, that is to say, apart from the contrivances of society, every man's thoughts and words, once uttered, are the property of mankind. The most ancient of poets calls them "winged words," because they take wings, independently of their author, and fly through the earth. The transition from the uttered and memorized song of HOMER to the modern book is through a thousand stages; and the circulation of an author's work now depends upon a host of considerations, of which the merits, or the time, labor, and genius it represents, are but the least. The extent of the community speaking his language, their habits and tastes in reading, the invention and perfection of the art of printing, the judgment of publishers in fixing its form, style and price; their enterprise and ability in distributing it; the price of materials and labor, and many other elements enter into it. Whatever right of property the author may have, therefore, cannot rest upon natural law; because its value grows entirely out of the artificial conditions of modern society. We must conclude that natural or abstract right and copyright are side apart and that the latter is but a rough legal contrivance to secure to authors, as a class, a reasonable reward for their labor. No man claims that the money value of the copyright bears any proportion whatever to the literary or scientific value of the book; that a novel which brings Miss BRADDON thousands of dollars for a few weeks of amusing is worth to mankind as much more than Mr. BIGELOW'S life-work upon the Mechanique Céleste as it deserves a hundred times as great a reward. And the same view has been taken practically by every civilized nation; for there is not one, in which copyright exists at all, where it is not a grant of the law, which would cease to exist if the law were repealed. Most property in land, products and wages would remain if the whole statute-book were abolished. These "rights" are protected but not created by law. But the common sense of mankind has with reason refused to place copyright into a very different category, and to treat it as the gift of the law, which it can resume at pleasure. The main argument for international copyright, which we have to do with, is void of indicative spots, positive or relevant to any question of practical legislation. Yours truly, JUSTICE.

OFFICIAL CORRUPTION ABROAD.

Charges of Embezzlement and Bribery Against a French Prefect.

Rouen (Feb. 22) Correspondence of the London Daily News.

The vast and superb hall of the Assize Court here has been thronged today with the elite of the Department of the Seine Inférieure and Eure, who are either witnesses or excited spectators of the extraordinary trial of M. JANVIER DE LA MOTTE, the late Prefect of the Eure. One hundred and fifty witnesses occupied almost all the seats in the body of the hall, and the President distributed hundreds of tickets to those who begged for places. Four Judges and Procureur-General INSARD and Advocate-General GREVIER sat in their scarlet robes. Every Paris journal was represented. The trial will last many days, therefore an extra Judge and two supplemental juries have been appointed. With M. JANVIER, DE LA MOTTE are accused, as accomplices, M. BOUSQUENOUR, the Departmental architect; M. BOUSQUENOUR, a builder; and M. VITTEGOG, Mayor of Beaumont. All are respectable-looking men. There has been no trial like this in France for many years.

M. JANVIER DE LA MOTTE, aged forty-eight, is a tall, well-shaped man. He has dark hair, closely shaven cheeks, carefully cultivated, thin long-drawn out mustache, and short-sighted; in fine, he has every pretension to be regarded as an Adonis. He has, nevertheless, a manly, intellectual, and an assured, not to say defiant demeanor. He surveyed the Judges and the audience as though conscious of being the central personage in the place, and with an air of command. His accusations are well instructed, and it is remarkable how high he holds his head when he stands up. M. LACOMBE, the counsel for the Emperor's favorite Prefect, on taking his seat, glanced at the gorgeous frotted roof of the mediæval hall, and remarked, with a sigh that it would absorb his voice. The prisoner, only twenty-five years of age, is a fine young man. The witnesses panel looked quite a special jury. The impressive oath administered was to the effect that they would neither betray the interests of the prisoners nor those of society, which accuses them. The reading of the indictment occupied three hours.

It appears from the charge that on Feb. 12, 1868, the prisoner, JANVIER DE LA MOTTE, was transferred from the Prefecture of the Loiret to that of the Eure. He had for many years before occupied various public offices, from his conduct in which he had acquired the reputation of an unscrupulous, immoral man, a devotee of facile pleasure, careless of duty and of duty's sterner sisters. Although his wife had a good fortune, of which he enjoyed the interest, he was always in debt. The instruction showed that before his appointment to Evreux he was in difficulties, and that when at Meaux he had recourse to disgraceful means to raise money. The reform in the Department of the Eure increased his embarrassments. His debts increased rapidly, less from the cost of his establishment than from other expenses which his disorderly habits led him to incur. The facilities of railway communication enabled him to pass much of his time in Paris. He continually left his wife and children, to indulge in debauchery with abandoned women, and often employed procureuses to find them for him. His conduct was so bad that in 1861 his wife felt it necessary for her own dignity and the interest of her children to apply for a separation, which the Court granted. The winding up of his affairs which followed upon this judgment showed that his debts amounted to 120,000 francs. He had long since ceased to pay his tradesmen, and often borrowed money of his servants. His wife's relations in vain made sacrifices to keep up his credit. Far from amending, he saw in the separation only an opportunity to indulge more openly than ever in his vile pleasures, and he installed his infamous female in his Prefecture, to the great scandal of the honest people of Evreux. With such habits, it was a matter of course that he should contract new debts. He constantly discounted bills with disreputable usurers, and his bills were regularly dishonored. Between Dec. 31, 1865, and March 28, 1867, he had 1,000 bills issued against him for sums of money amounting in the aggregate to 208,532 francs. Being in imminent danger of bankruptcy, with a schedule showing 700,000 francs of debt, his friends again came forward and saved him. But shortly afterward, in April, 1868, it was thought necessary to remove him from his Prefecture. Simultaneously, the Council of Evreux demanded to his administration of the departmental funds. So far back as 1866 M. DESCHAMPS, the Mayor of Evreux, memorialized the Council-General of the Eure, requesting to ask accounts of the Prefect touching the amount of a subscription for the relief of distressed cotton-workers which he received, and also a sum of upward of 15,000 francs paid for entries at the Regional Agricultural Exhibition of 1866. The same year, in June, an account was presented to the Council-General, and duly passed that body, but suspicions continued to exist. In July, 1870, the Municipal Council of Evreux passed a resolution that the former Prefect should be called upon to account for the exhibition money, which belonged to the town. And at length, on Sept. 23, 1870, the Minister of Finance preferred a charge of forgery and embezzlement, which is the foundation of the present prosecution. It were impossible to investigate all the facts relating to the administration of the prisoner, extending over a period of ten years, during which time, it is said, he spent as much as forty millions of francs, which passed through his hands. Two items, which, though incomplete, show conclusively the criminal habits of JANVIER DE LA MOTTE, it was by scrutinizing as the weakness of his administration and the tradesmen of the Prefecture, and procuring from them fictitious bills and false receipts, that he wholly misled the relief of the public accounts, and procured funds which were unduly placed to the debit of the communes and the department. His frauds began ten years ago.

A great number of instances of frauds were then given, of which I can only cite some few specimens. It is alleged that the real expenses of the celebrated fête to the Emperor in 1864 were but 25,000 francs, whereas the Prefect charged the Department 75,000 francs. JULES GODARD, the aeronaut, received 1,500 francs for going up in a balloon, but signed without reading it a receipt for 4,000 francs. As a shareholder in a tobacco manufactory, a simple-hearted man who cannot read or write, and never in his life had so much as 100 francs owing him, was made to figure as the recipient of 2,000 francs for a road contract. A flower merchant of Paris named BOUSSAVIT furnished flowers to the amount of 2,200 francs for a fête at the Prefecture, but he received but 700 francs. A woman named HENRIETTE RENARD, one of JANVIER DE LA MOTTE'S mistresses, living at No. 6 Rue d'Enghien, Paris. For the bribe of 400 francs the tradesman signed a receipt for 9,000 francs. M. SIMON, the Manager of the Evreux Theatre, received 1,200 francs for an official performance. He was induced to sign a receipt for 4,000 francs on the representation that the Prefect had made presents of diamonds to M. BERSAERT and Mlle. DAMAIN. These same diamonds had been already charged to the departmental fund. He charged expensive flowers, selected by his mistress, HENRIETTE, to the public purse. He charged 2,200 francs for postages of his circulars, whereas he was entitled to frank letters in his department, and it was utterly impossible that anything like the amount could have been expended. In 1861 the American war produced a cotton crisis. The Ministry sent 112,000 francs to JANVIER DE LA MOTTE to relieve distress. The Council-General voted 242,000 francs, and a private subscription amounted to 127,795 francs. Of all these sums, which passed through the hands of the Prefect, only 40,000 francs were accounted for. To sum up, the instruction—which bears only upon a few points of the twelve years' administration of the prisoner, JANVIER DE LA MOTTE—shows that he exercised almost fatal sway in the Department of the Eure. He served demonstrations, he bribed, he gained the ex-Minister, he bribed. As a man, he set the example of the most scandalous debauchery. As an administrator, he trampled upon the plainest rules of probity. He forged writings, corrupted his subordinates, scattered public money to the winds, and paid for his own pleasures with funds which should have been sacred. Such is the past life of this man, who endowed with no common intelligence might have honorably served his country, if, in addition to his talent, he had united common honesty and that feeling of self-respect without which a functionary is unworthy of the confidence of the State and the esteem of his fellow-citizens. Encouraged by his examples and misled by his deplorable influence, his accomplices indicted with him lent themselves to the fabrication of false vouchers, if not for their own personal benefit, at least to be agreeable to him. In consequence his prosecutor even added as principals to the accomplices of embezzlement of private and public moneys, forgery of private and public documents, and "complicity" and "connivance," two technical expressions in the French code for crimes committed by public functionaries.

M. JANVIER DE LA MOTTE, who has great command of self-possession, bowed imperturbably to the several charges on the indictment. Among the witnesses for the prosecution are Count Lagrange, the Duke of Albufera, the Marquis Blancmesnil, the Duke of Clermont-Tonnerre, and M. Grévy, the present M. JANVIER DE LA MOTTE has cited M. Fayet-Gaudin, M. Mazeau, the Minister of Justice, Admiral Jaurès, the Admiral de Rosamel, Le Sourd, and the Marquis de Croix, with whom he was page.

At the opening of the Stock Exchange, yesterday morning, there was an instant demand for Erie, and the shares went up steadily under a strong call. All sorts of pleasant rumors were afloat among the brokers, the most prominent being that an informal examination of the Erie books had been far more favorable than had been anticipated. It was believed during the morning that ex-Mayor Hall would be [illegible] and Kelsey, the Board of Directors is preparing, to justify the hopeful views of numerous holders of this stock. This, and, no doubt, some effect upon the share market, and though nothing appeared, either definite or indefinite, this morning of up steadily during the day. In the afternoon Mr. TRAVERS, of the new directory, made his appearance, and in answer to the inquiries of friends said that he was preparing a statement concerning the consolidated bonds of Erie, which would accompany a formal petition to have them placed on the share list. He is said, also, to have confirmed so much of the rumors current as referred to the books of the Company and to the outstanding liabilities.

Yet, in spite of this activity and the confidence, the brokers and the bankers of Wall Street and the vicinity, have not changed their mind with regard to the drama lately performed at the Grand Opera-house. They still insist that it was a farce, and that the new directors are in the interest of the Atlantic and Great Western. Some asserted that the facts were these: BISCHOFFSHEIM & GOLDSCHMIDT, brokers, of London, have in the past made such advances to the Atlantic and Great Western as virtually to own it. This Company, it is alleged, is so nearly in a bankrupt condition as not to be able to earn much more than the interest on its debt, exclusive of the running expenses. By a proposed arrangement with Erie it would be able to gain enough to pay interest and expenses. But by merging the two companies together and putting the profits into a pool, Erie to have sixty per cent, and the Atlantic and Great Western the remaining forty per cent, there would remain a very handsome profit, indeed for the latter. There would, moreover, be the prospect of advantage to Erie in this bargain which would be completely one-sided, and is not called for either by the logic of events or the wishes of the shareholders. So far back as six months ago, BISCHOFFSHEIM opened overtures with JAY GOULD, but FISK was unwilling, and though JAY GOULD acquitted with FISK, he left Erie smarting under the sense of wrong, prepared for the Albany fight in its usual manner. His death removed the obstacle to GOULD's consideration of the proposals of the English firm, and the result was the solemn farce performed on Monday and Tuesday.

A reporter of the TIMES yesterday interviewed Mr. ALEXANDER WILLIAMS, the leader of the American shareholders of Erie, whose offices are at No. 40 Wall-street. He stated that he was not altogether dissatisfied with the turn things had taken, because, though the inclination toward the Atlantic and Great Western Company was too visible to be overlooked, yet issues were now generally in the Board of Directors who were far too responsible to permit any action that would be disadvantageous to Erie. These two were Gen. DIX and Col. SPRAGUE. He had known the latter for very many years, and was satisfied that the interests of the Company would never suffer while he had anything to say in the matter. But for the other new members of the Erie Board he was constrained to believe that the Atlantic and Great Western was more in their mind than Erie. He did not think that the statements in the injunction procured by Mr. JAY GOULD concerning the buying of five directors by BISCHOFFSHEIM amounts for $200,000, were to be considered as falsehoods. All the brokers that he was acquainted with were of the same opinion as himself that BISCHOFFSHEIM had bought all of the Erie Board that was either purchaseable or worth buying, including Mr. JAY GOULD, and that the whole siege arrangement was planned from beginning to end, in Mr. GOULD's dining-room, under instructions by the TOMMY LYNCH gang, and the chief through the President's rooms. This view would seem to be entertained in England also, for the bonds of the Atlantic and Great Western went up yesterday seven per cent.

REPORTER—Then you do not believe that BUCKLEY and the directors played points upon Mr. GOULD and the others?

Mr. WILLIAMS—No, I do not. What points had they to play? Men talk about their having been threatened with suits; and say ARCHER especially was frightened into yielding because SICKLES declared that claims to the amount of twenty-two millions could be made against him by the Erie Railway, and he would be if he held out. But if these claims are legitimate the new men are bound to enforce them, and if they are not legitimate it is not likely that they would have scared Mr. ARCHER.

REPORTER—What points did they bring upon JAY GOULD?

Mr. WILLIAMS—I do not know, nor does anybody. The vulnerable point of all these old directors is in the contracts which were made with them for furnishing supplies to Erie. Engines of Elmira, for example, has a rolling-mill in which JAY GOULD has a quarter interest. He furnished all the iron and steel that was required. His friends claim that he did it at the most reasonable prices, but a little publicity would soon determine that it was through them he became connected with Erie, and that road was absorbed. If the present men mean business, they will stop these contracts at the earliest possible opportunity, and make them public at once. I am persuaded that they will read like a chapter out of the TIMES' exposé of the new Court-house.

REPORTER—Can you tell me what amount of stock is held by the new men?

Mr. WILLIAMS—I cannot. It is claimed that GOULD holds twelve millions, and that the Atlantic and Great Western men have six more. Now HEATH and RAFFRAEL represent two-thirds of all the stock held in Europe, possibly about forty millions. If representative American stockholders at large, and between us we shall certainly determine the elections next July.

REPORTER—Can you tell me what directors you propose to nominate for that election.

Mr. WILLIAMS—I must be excused from saying so much. But this I can say, that all the talk got up by ELDRIDGE to the small country papers about Englishmen running the Erie to pin-combs, Mr. SWAN, the agent for HEATH and RAFFRAEL, does not contemplate any such thing, and never did. As Erie stands today, it is controlled by BISCHOFFSHEIM, who is decidedly an Englishman, and there will be, sooner or later, an attempt to involve it in contracts favorable to him and his friends, and directly antagonistic to Erie. For when a man plunks down $250,000, it is to get something in return. Nobody doubts that. Time will show in what way Mr. BISCHOFFSHEIM proposes to get back value received for such lavish expenditure. It is my hope and full belief, however, that any attempt to merge the two companies, or to make a contract between them, to the advantage of the Atlantic and Great Western, will be at once met by Mr. STEBBINS, who is an excellent man of business and very honorable. DIX is honorable too, but he is only a figure-head.

REPORTER—To what do you attribute the sudden rise in Erie this morning?

Mr. WILLIAMS—To reports that a financial statement was about to be submitted very favorable to the Company.

REPORTER—Was one furnished?

Mr. WILLIAMS—Not; it was only rumor. But on the Stock Exchange rumors are like dust which penetrates into dwelling-houses no matter how carefully they are fastened up.

REPORTER—How was it that you who are interested in Erie for the American shareholders did not foresee the coup d'état of BISCHOFFSHEIM?

Mr. WILLIAMS—I did, or rather we did. As early as January we were fully posted in his intentions, and the Committee of which I am one sent round the following circular to the stockholders:

NEW-YORK, Jan. 4, 1872.

At a meeting of the Committee of American Stockholders of the Erie Railway, held on Wednesday, the 3d inst., the recent movement set on foot by Messrs. BISCHOFFSHEIM and GOLDSCHMIDT, interest of the Atlantic and Great Western stockholders was discussed, and the following resolution was passed:

Whereas, The Committee of American Stockholders of the Erie Railway, in view of the recent combination on the part of the stockholders in the Atlantic and Great Western Railway Company, represented by Messrs. BISCHOFFSHEIM and GOLDSCHMIDT, of London, and have reason to believe that any management of the Erie Railway in the interest of the Atlantic and Great Western Road, or any compromise with the present managers of the Erie Railway, would be seriously detrimental to the prosperity of the main line.

Resolved, That the Committee recommend the American stockholders to withhold their confidence from the above-named Atlantic and Great Western combination, and from all movements having for their object the benefit of outside railways, or the maintenance in office of any partyes, the present management of the Erie Railway, or any other, whatsoever proposing to effect objects outside or incompatible with the direct interests of the Erie Railway. (Signed) W. E. CLERKE,

REUBEN MANLEY,

A. D. WILLIAMS,

So you see we were not taken by surprise. We put the matter in a nutshell for the readers of the TIMES, we await the election in July next, calmly considering in the interior of DIX and STRONG. Weakly as we think they may say they are a weakly trustees of the stockholders, but such they will prevent any contract being made between the Company and the Atlantic and Great Western. If only attempt this, as they most indubitably will, we rely on them to stop them, even if they have to cut an injunction.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE ERIE BOARD.

The directors met at noon yesterday, a quorum being present. The Vice-President, Mr. ARCHER, was in the chair. Messrs. BISCHOFFSHEIM and GOLDSCHMIDT were present, and appointed the financial agents of the Company in Europe. The contracts with the Southern Improvement Company, concerning the [illegible] of oil, [illegible] Palace—A Trip to Matanzas—Active Work.

From Our Special Correspondent.

HAVANA, Saturday, March 9, 1872.

Duke ALEXIS continues to engross attention, and as the many festivities in his honor have exhausted that portion of the Havanese who are seen everywhere, it is about time that the Duke should carry out resolution of leaving into effect. There is always the same sentiment in Havana; the people you meet at the opera are seen on the Paseo, at the receptions of the wealthier classes, and on all public occasions. The round of festivities begin on Sunday morning; of course some went to church, and others didn't, but all took care to go to the village of Marianao and attend a cock-fight. The bells of the churches rang merrily and the Duke passed by the little chapel on his way to the cockpit, followed by different Spanish dignitaries, some naval officers, the incumbent of the United States Consulate, and by the gamblers and other bad characters who attend cock-fights. The different pulgs over, the whole party, including many who pretend to be great Cuban sympathizers, adjourned to the house of Col. JULIAN ZULUETA, of the Volunteers, to partake of a lunch, and when they had indulged their vanity and satisfied their appetite they returned to the city.

THE PALACE BALL.

The pleasures of the cock-fight over, a short time was allowed for recuperation before the ball given in honor of the Prince by the Ayuntamiento (City Council) of Havana, at the Palace. Gigantic preparations had been made, and tickets had been distributed profusely. By 10 o'clock, the whole of the Palace, which had been thrown open for the occasion, was crowded, there being hardly room to pass around. The rooms had been tastefully, though simply decorated, both the Palace proper of the Captain-General, and the halls of the Ayuntamiento, in the other wings of the building, being thrown open. The entrance to the Palace was brilliantly illuminated, and over the doorway was hung in gas-jets the inscription, "Viva Amadeo I.," ("Long live AMADEUS the First.") At 10½ the Prince arrived, and was received by the Captain-General, a deputation of the Ayuntamiento, and with military honors from the battalion of Volunteers on guard, their band playing the Russian national hymn while the Prince ascended the staircase. This staircase deserves a passing notice, owing to the richness and quantity of exotics which lined either side. On the Prince's appearance in the saloons, the two orchestras, stationed in opposite wings of the Palace, struck up the Spanish royal march, after which the opening quadrille was at once formed, the royal guest leading, with the Countess of GRANADA. Then the dancing became general, and there was such a number of couples who were eager to participate in the round dances that it was impossible for all to be satisfied. But when it is estimated that over four thousand people were present during the evening, the almost insurmountable difficulty of securing anything like comfort is easily explained. Supper was served at 1 o'clock, and after the Prince's appetite had been appeased, table after table was laid for the company. The crowd, of course, prevented a comfortable repast, but the display was splendid, and did much credit to "The Dominica," who had charge of everything. At 3 o'clock the Prince retired, but the dancing did not terminate till past 5, and the cook had crowed his warning long before the string of carriages received their weary occupants.

TRIP TO MATANZAS.

A special train was in waiting at the Regla Depot at 10 o'clock in the morning to conduct the Duke and suite to Matanzas, where he arrived in safety at midday, and was received by the Governor and Government officials, grandees, &c. He was driven in an open barouche to the Palace, the Volunteers forming an Indian file along the route. At the Palace a grand reception was held, after which the party repaired to the would-be Ducal residence on the top of Simpson's Hill—the Quinta of Don FELIX TORRES GONZALES. The streets were crowded with the populace and troops de circunstance. At 4 he visited the Valley of the Yumuri, and then returned to the Palace, four bands of music playing in the square. At 7 dinner began, lasting until 9, and a little later all adjourned to the ball given at the saloons of the Spanish Casino.

AT THE THEATRE.

After returning to Havana, the official visit to the theatre took place on Tuesday evening, the Prince having taken the opportunity to roam about the city from the time he returned from Matanzas until the evening; indeed, it is observed that he is always moving about incognito when possible. The opera selected for the occasion was "Martha," and it was sung by Miles. DALTI, TERZA, and Signors TAMBERLICK and MARI. Of course, the artists exerted themselves to their utmost, and the house was crowded, the Prince applauding frequently; but there was an utter absence of bouquet throwing, which on such an occasion would be the thing in a New-York theatre. Before the performance commenced, the Russian national hymn was sung by all the company, the audience standing. Signor TAMBERLICK gave the solo in Russian, and brought down the house with this innovation.

A BULL-FIGHT.

A bull-fight had been arranged in honor of the Duke, and at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the immense Plaza de Torros was crowded to its utmost capacity, nearly eleven thousand spectators being present, including a number wearing ladies' apparel. The usual disgusting scenes were witnessed, and horses, gored by the bulls, ran about with their entrails protruding, much to the delight of the Spaniards. Can they at Havana can boast of such brutal sport, it had also a more pleasing spectacle in view, for the same evening, on board of the frigate Gerona, the naval ball occurred, and this was a delightful affair.

THE DUKE'S DEPARTURE.

It was expected that ALEXIS would leave today, but his departure will hardly take place before Wednesday. The Abreck returns to Russia, and the other two ships will proceed from here to Rio Janeiro. QUASIMODO.

A Busy Day in the Court of General Sessions—Sentences Yesterday.

HENRY NEUMAN, alias Dutch Heinrichs, was arraigned in the Court of General Sessions yesterday charged with the theft of bonds. His counsel were allowed by the Recorder until Tuesday next to prepare a special plea, the prisoner being remanded.

LIZZIE DAVIS and Mme. ST. VALERIE, confidence women, charged with swindling several dry-goods firms. They pleaded not guilty, and will be tried next Tuesday. JOHN MCGRAU, convicted of burglary in the second degree, was sentenced to State Prison for ten years; his partner in the crime, JOHN MCMAHON, having given State's evidence was discharged. EDWARD MCGIVEN, for burglary in the third degree, was sent to the Penitentiary for six months; as also JAMES B. FLEMING, for grand larceny. GEORGE MASON, for burglary, was sent to the State Prison for two years and six months. PATRICK MCCAULEY, convicted on Wednesday, was sentenced, for manslaughter, to two years in State Prison. CULLEN, who killed DENNIS O'CONNOR with a dirk-knife, was arraigned for manslaughter. In answer to his counsel's plea for mercy, Recorder HACKETT said: "A man who steals six cents from the person can be sent to the State Prison for five years, while he who takes life under such circumstances as cannot be called murder need only suffer four years' imprisonment. The extreme limit should be ten years. I think the prisoner deserves no further leniency, and I sentence him to the State Prison for four years."

The Court adjourned until Tuesday next.

The "Unemployed" at Tompkins-Square Yesterday—They Want a Little Work.

A public meeting of the "unemployed" was convened at Tompkins-square, at 3 o'clock, yesterday, under the auspices of the International Union, to adopt measures in the interest of the working classes, with a view to secure Government employment, and in demonstration of capital generally. About 200 persons, comprising many women and children, were in attendance, and the enthusiasm was altogether limited to the immediate friends of the speakers. The pavilion used by the band was converted into the grand stand, and was profusely decorated with banners bearing the mottoes: "Our rights—peaceably if we can, forcibly if we must;" "Eight hours labor," &c., and the whole surrounded by the red flag of the Internationals. On the motion of Mr. BANES, Mr. MAHONY was called upon to preside. Mr. GEO. [illegible] and the following resolutions, which were [illegible]:

[illegible] that a National Labor Bureau be established for the purpose of inaugurating all the various branches of industry, guaranteeing employment to persons who cannot find it elsewhere, and providing articles of trade (not exceeding eight hours per day) and competition, and that the products be sold to the people at cost. That railroads, telegraphs, canals, the works, expressage, interstate, &c., be owned and run by the Government in the interest of the people at cost. That the further sale of the unoccupied public domain be at once prohibited, and that the Government shall either employ thereon the landless settler and superintend the cultivation thereof, or dispose of it in limited quantities to actual settlers, and aid such settlers by loans of money, supplies of machinery, or implements, payable at the state use. That measures be taken by the representatives of the United States and the several States and municipalities, as soon as practicable, that the money be substituted in the people for money of repute, thus dispensing the people from the usury now with the Government. That for the immediate relief of the thousands in this City, we demand of the authorities employment on the full extent of the power granted by the Civil Government, in the improvement of the streets, instead of the swindling system of contracts.

IRA H. DAVIS and several others addressed the meeting, and, after the reading of a communication from Mrs. WOODHULL, it adjourned.

DESTRUCTION BY HUNTERS.

Large Receipts of Deer-Skins in St. Paul—Some Statistics Relating to Wool, Furs, Pelts and Hides.

From the St. Paul (Minn.) Press, March 9.

During the late session of the Legislature an ineffectual attempt was made to enact a law which should prevent the wholesale destruction of the deer in this State. Dealers in St. Paul alone have shipped during the year 1871 15,487 deer-skins, the value of which was $36,135. Enormous as has been this number, it falls below the year 1870, when the exportations were some thousands more, and the value $37,000—showing clearly that the deer are becoming thinned out, and their total destruction is only a question of a few years. But the Legislature refused to interpose any obstacle to the promiscuous slaughter of deer, principally on the ground that settlers desired the privilege of hunting them at seasons when they had nothing else to do—not alone to procure venison for the use of their families, but to secure the skins, which are worth the paltry sum of about twenty-five cents a pound after they have finally found their way to St. Paul.

While in pursuit of the facts given above, the following statistics were obtained: The table below gives the value of the importations from St. Paul of the articles mentioned, which partially indicates the extent of the trade in this line in this city:

	Imports. Same in 1871.	Imports. Same in 1870.	Imports. Same in 1869.
Wool	$48,000	$14,000	$21,000
Furs	321,000	400,000	224,000
Deer-skins	15,000	37,000	22,000
Beaver-skins	15,000	10,000	17,000
Buffalo-robes	120,000	100,000	175,000
Green hides	120,000	100,000	227,000
Dry hides	20,000	30,000	56,000
Totals	$1,126,000	$1,195,000	$1,922,000

The deduction can be drawn from these figures that deer, buffalo and all fur-bearing animals are gradually disappearing, a process which will in all likelihood continue as Minnesota and the Western Territories become more densely populated, and the period is consequently not remote when the hunter will be compelled to look for such game among the unsettled wilds of British America, or the distant slopes of the Rocky Mountains.

The Yale Corporation—Arrangements for Alumni Representation.

From the New-Haven Palladium, March 14.

At a meeting of the Corporation of Yale College, yesterday, arrangements were made for the manner in which the Alumni members of the Corporation, to be elected at the coming Commencement, shall be chosen. An opportunity is to be given until the 1st of May for any of the Alumni entitled to vote to present the names of candidates. From the names given a list is to be made out of those who have been suggested by twenty-five or more, and this is to be sent with blanks for voting to all the Alumni. The voting will take place on the day before Commencement. Those who cannot be in town will send their ballots duly attested by mail, and then when the six candidates who shall have the largest number of the votes so cast shall be declared elected. The project of making a change in the Sunday services in the chapel, dispensing with morning prayer, and substituting a later and shorter service for the afternoon preaching, was discussed, but no alterations were decided upon.

Miserable Death of a Miserly Man.

HUSTED HOBBY, who has occupied a small farm-house alone in the village of Greenwich, Conn., for years, and has been known to all the people around as a miser, is dead. The brief story of his life and its end is thus told by the New-Haven Palladium:

He was a cattle-drover, and by shrewdness and penuriousness had accumulated a fortune of $100,000. He never spent any money but for the veriest necessities of life. He never had any washing done, but put on an undergarment and wore it till it wore out. One day last week a neighbor went to the house and knocked, but got no answer. He forced the door and found a hideous spectacle. Hobby was lying on a dilapidated sofa almost dead. On the floor was a calf which had evidently died from hunger, and the body had been partially eaten by several hogs which were also in the room. The pantry was used by chickens to roost. An undressed pig was found in the stove oven, and little bits of the body had been eaten. Hobby was in a dying condition from a stroke of paralysis, and was taken care of by the Selectmen as his death."

The Season in Canada—Long-Continued Snow—Need of Water.

From the Montreal Witness, March 13.

This morning the snow is lying in Lower Canada deeper than at any previous period of the Winter, and as clear and sparkling as it was in January. We have had nearly four months of continuous frost and snow, with only two or three very slight and very short thaws, that accomplished nothing in filling the rivers or tanks. There is consequently great want of water, and the country was, probably, never in greater need of rain. We observe that the same scarcity of water prevails over many parts of New-England.

The Assistant Aldermen—The Freight-Car Nuisance—Officers' Fees—New Appointments.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen met yesterday, President HALL in the chair.

A report of the Committee on Railroads was presented. It recommended that the present custom of running freight-cars on the Fourth-avenue Railroad below the depot be discontinued, except between the hours of 8 P. M. and 6½ A. M.

The report was laid over.

Mr. PINCKNEY offered a resolution requesting the Controller to report to the Board whether any officers of the Finance Department receive fees for their services, and, if any, to furnish a list of their names.

Mr. ROBINSON suggested that the resolution be amended so as to embrace a list of all the officers in the Finance Department, and the service and amount of compensation allowed to each.

Mr. PINCKNEY said he desired to make war on the fee system, especially where $600,000 is paid for work which could be performed for $60,000. The resolution was then adopted.

Mr. ROBINSON offered a resolution rescinding the resolution authorizing the use of dummies in Hudson, Canal and West streets by the Hudson River Railroad. It was referred.

The President of the Board announced the following appointments:

Deputy Clerk, M. Kelly; First Assistant Clerk, John E. Dowling; Second Assistant, Wm. Donnelly; Engrossing Clerk, Thomas Hudson; General Clerk, Edward Downey; Reader, Geo. D. Kelly; Index Clerk, Frank Mangin; Messenger, Patrick Fitzgerald; Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms, Thomas Nolligan; Messenger to President, Frank Purdy; Charles Gallagher was elected Doorkeeper.

The Board then adjourned.

A Man Drowned in the East River—Mistake of the Ferry-Boats to Save Him.

As the Fulton Ferry-boat Wissota, which left her slip on the New-York side at 10:30 on Tuesday night, reached within about two hundred yards of the Brooklyn shore, her pilot, JAMES BAULSIE, noticed that the South Ferry-boat, Montauk, was laying in mid-stream, and apparently disabled. He at once decided to go to her assistance, but in another instant heard a cry of a man overboard. At once comprehending the situation, he neared through the darkness to endeavor to catch a glimpse of the castaway. The night was dark, and the river full of floating ice. He saw a dark mass at a short distance, apparently drouching on ice clinging to a cake of ice, and called for help; but with the excitement and noise of his passengers it was impossible for him to determine from what point the cries came. Fearful of running down the man, he stopped the boat, and at once entered the yawl launched. The Montauk, in the meantime, had also launched one of her boats, and commenced the most strenuous efforts to save the imperiled man, who continued to cry loudly for help; but the ice was so firmly packed that they found it impossible to reach him, though they continued their efforts until they reached the Greenpoint Ferry, when his cries ceased, and no trace of him could be found. Both ferry-boats cautiously followed up the search to that point, but had to keep at some distance, fearing that

THE SAVINGS BANKS.

Walter Roche and the Bowling-Green Depositors—Mr. Knapp and the Proceedings in Bankruptcy.

The furniture and fixtures of the Bowling-green Savings Bank will be sold by auction in the first week in April, and the receiver of the bank, Mr. KNAPP, will remove to an office in the neighborhood, until the winding up of the affairs of the bank. The Depositors' Committee have, for the last week, been actively endeavoring to break WALTER ROCHE to terms. They are willing to compromise with him, as they have already done in "HARP" SMITH'S case; but the offers so far made by ROCHE have been so ridiculously small compared with his liabilities that they could not be accepted. The Committee state that they intend giving ROCHE only a few days more in which to come to their terms, failing in which they will immediately institute both civil and criminal proceedings against him. They have within the last few days gathered further proofs of the criminal liability in the suspension of the bank, upon which their counsel advise them they can hold him liable for nearly the entire deficit.

The Bolivar Savings Bank.

The postponement of the election of assignee in bankruptcy of the Market Savings Bank has caused considerable commotion among the depositors, many of whom assembled yesterday at the banking-house to hear what the receiver, Mr. WORTH, had to lay upon the subject. Mr. WORTH said that the postponement was unfortunately unavoidable, and say unnecessary delay in the bankruptcy proceedings was to be attributed to the petitioner in bankruptcy, and the bankrupt law, and certainly not either to his counsel or himself. The petitioner, Mr. WORTH stated, had it entirely in his own power to hasten the bankruptcy proceedings, but he (Mr. Worth) feared the petitioner was purposely delaying the proceedings in the hope of obtaining a full settlement of his claim from him. Further, Mr. WORTH said that the postponement completely frustrated all his attempts to call in the loans. It was expected that a dividend of twenty per cent could be paid within fifty days, but as affairs now stand, it is feared that the payment of this dividend will have to be postponed.

The Depositors' Investigating Committee must retain today, and they expect to be able to publish a statement of the entire results of their investigations next week.

A resolution was adopted rescinding the resolution allowing WM. A. BEACH $5,000 as counsel fees in the case of DANIEL D. CONOVER and others.

A claim of $15,000 for appraising City property, was presented by Mr. A. J. BANDERAS, and referred to counsel.

Payments by the Comptroller.

Controller GROSS made the following payments yesterday:

Engineers, contractors and laborers on Big Sewers, $[illegible]; Department of Public Instruction—for sale of teachers and employes for February, 1872 ..... $37,134 90
Department of Public Instruction—for general purposes of the Department 100,000 00
There was also paid the sum of $[illegible] to the persons for services as inspectors, &c., at last election.

Department of Docks—The Condition of the Piers.

The Commissioners of Docks met yesterday, Commissioner AGNEW in the chair.

An application was read from a Superintendent asking that portions of certain piers on the North and East Rivers be repaired.

Commissioner WOOD said that the enterprise of our merchants was hindered by the action of the Controller refusing to obey the order of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund directing $2,000,000 worth of bonds to be destroyed and placed at the disposal of the Department of Docks.

Commissioner AGNEW said that all the piers in the City except those belonging to private parties were in good order.

Commissioner WOOD introduced a resolution which was adopted directing the Chief Engineer to place before the Commissioners at their next meeting a map of that part of the river front extending from Harlem River, at Sixteenth-street, to Grand-street, at the East River.

The meeting then adjourned.

Gov. Hoffman Grants a Requisition for the Arrest of a Forger—Judge Cardozo Compensates it.

SPENCE PETTUS, who has been frequently arrested by the Police in this and other cities, and who is looked upon as the most accomplished and expert forger in the country, was taken into custody on Wednesday last by one of the Central Office detectives, and he is now confined at Police Head-quarters. PETTUS was arrested on a requisition issued by Gov. HOFFMAN at the request of Gov. WASHBURN, of Massachusetts, on a charge of having obtained $16,000 worth of bonds from BOWDEN BROS., of Boston, by means of a forged check. Detectives WADE and PHENAN, of the Boston Police force, arrived here on Tuesday last, armed with a warrant from the Governor of Massachusetts for his arrest. They proceeded to Albany, and Gov. HOFFMAN granted a requisition for his extradition to the authorities of Massachusetts. After PETTUS had been secured, instead of being taken to Boston by the night train, he was locked up at Police Head-quarters for the night. Early yesterday morning Capt. IRVING of the Detective Police, was armed with a warrant issued by Judge CARDOZO, of the Supreme Court, directing the Captain to produce the prisoner before him on Saturday morning for examination. This, of course, prevents the Boston officers from taking their man to that city for trial, much to the disappointment of those who think the crime with which he is charged was committed over a year ago, and of course he claims to be entirely innocent. He further claims that he has been tried twice for the offense and been acquitted on each occasion, and that the present arrest was made at the instigation of the Boston Police, who are anxious to blackmail him, and with this view of the case the brilliant detective who arrested him appeared to coincide. It is also said that PETTUS has been tried before as a prisoner in the Bravery, and he is now indicted up as accessory. The account is locked up at Police Head-quarters to await further developments.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Before Judge Hatchford.

IN ADMIRALTY.

Charles A. Spofford and Henry Terrance vs. The Bark Antonette.—This was a suit to recover the value of certain grain been damaged while in the hold of the bark by contact with certain bleaching powders and wet wool. The libelants alleged that the damage was caused by the ordinary accidents and perils of the sea. Judge HATCHFORD in his decision, says that the casks in which the soda ash and bleaching powders were stowed were not watertight, permitting the rain of the ship; that water in the casks to rot and burst, and the ash dissolved the water, and mixed with the wool and substance of the bleaching powder. If the casks had been watertight and stowed properly, the ash would not have been wet, and the bleaching powder, would not have been burned. To the extent of human foresight, it was a very good thing, and to a certain degree it was a good ship. The damage was in consequence of the fault of the ship, and could have been avoided by ordinary care. Decree for the libelants, with costs, with reference to ascertain damages.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—PART I.—MARCH 14.

Before Judge Barrett and a Jury.

OVERPAID DUTIES.

Benjamin T. Huntington vs. Isaac B. Shimon.—This is an action to recover $[illegible], claimed to be due thereof from defendant under a contract to reclaim from the Government of the United States overpaid duties on certain spelter, which formerly an appraiser in the Custom-house, entered into a contract, with owner of spelter, represented by a number of importers in this City, to reclaim from the Government of the United States the duties alleged to have been overcharged, in violation of the tariff laws. In the contract it was provided that plaintiff should receive fifty per cent. of the amount reclaimed. On the part of the defendant it was claimed that he signed the power of attorney, supposing it to be that only, and that he had a right to compensation which plaintiff is entitled to collect the overpaid duties for a fixed compensation of $[illegible].

The jury found in favor of plaintiff for $[illegible].

SUPERIOR COURT—GENERAL TERM—MARCH 14.

Before Judges Monell, Freedman and Curtis.

[illegible] AT CHAMBERS.

Mary Fowler vs. The Broadway and Seventh-avenue Railroad.—This is an action to recover damages for injuries received by being thrown from a car, and for the loss of her husband, who was killed in a railroad accident. Judgment for plaintiff for $[illegible]. From this judgment an appeal was taken to the General Term, where the judgment was reversed, and a second trial was ordered, which was heard before Judge Barrett and a jury, and the verdict was for the plaintiff for $[illegible].

The New-York Times.
DAILY, WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

This journal is now thoroughly identified with the greatest political necessity of the hour—incessantly waging warfare against all forms of corruption, whether in national or local government. For years past the TIMES has been exposing the demoralizing schemes of self-interested politicians, and its recent venture upon the Tammany Democrats has been received with universal approval. It has adhered to the pledge given in its original prospectus, more than twenty years ago, that the public should be truly represented, and their interests faithfully guarded through its columns. The record has been pure and honorable, and the highest aim of its proprietors is to render it more and more worthy of its past history, and of the confidence which the public repose in it. Two out of three of the original proprietors still direct its policy, and guide it on all public questions. They purpose that the TIMES shall continue to keep clear of all narrow and unworthy influences and cliques, and aim to represent the great body of the public, as distinguished from personal factions. It occupies a perfectly independent position, and is free to speak the truth on all subjects and about all men. Its greatly increased circulation throughout the country adds to its power and influence. It will continue to be a faithful exponent of Republican principles, and advocate with uniform charity every effort which tends to further the welfare of the people.

The utmost care will be devoted to gathering political news from special sources during the Fifty-second Congress. The department of the paper will be uniformly full and trustworthy. Renewed enterprise will be exhibited in every department of the paper, and large space will be devoted to reports of speeches made during elections, or on other important political occasions.

A very full summary of news, and many general articles of great interest, are published in the Semi-Weekly edition, and in the Weekly edition there is an unabridged report of the proceedings of the Farmers' Club, an excellent summary of political information, and a great variety of matter suitable for family reading.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is pre-eminently a family paper, all objectionable advertisements being rigidly excluded; and it has a constantly increasing circulation among the most respectable classes of the community.

When President GRANT entered office, he found the public service demoralized in all directions by the corrupt Administration of "Andy" Johnson. In the course of three years he has carried out or proposed many valuable reforms; the public debt has been decreased three hundred millions, thus effecting a reduction in the interest of eighteen millions annually; taxes have been largely reduced; an honorable effort has been made to settle our differences peaceably with England; and the welfare of the whole people has been consistently studied. Does any one suppose that the Convention of scoundrels and bolters at Cincinnati will find a man to do better work than this? Has HORACE GREELEY or CARL SCHURZ a better claim upon public respect than Gen. GRANT?

We do not pretend to be in the secrets of the new combination which has obtained possession of the Erie road, and therefore we speak in the dark—but it seems to us that the presence of JAY GOULD as a director at the Board throws suspicion on the entire proceedings. It may be said that the new directors cannot turn out JAY GOULD, but if we are not mistaken, the same means which they used to induce GOULD to resign his chairmanship would amply suffice to get rid of him altogether. The Direction has all the books and papers of the Company at its disposal, and they are quite enough—unless we are greatly misinformed—to transfer JAY GOULD from the Grand Opera-house to a State Prison. This was the rod held over the swindler's head on Tuesday, and it scared him into a surrender. The public will not regard with favor anything which looks like a compromise with JAY GOULD. If there is evidence enough to convict him, why not use it in the proper manner, and thus rid the community at once of a man who has long been a disgrace to it?

The Judiciary Committee of the Legislature will today resume their investigations into the conduct of the accused Judges, at the Fifth-avenue Hotel. Once more we appeal to lawyers and others to come forward with their evidence. But even in the absence of specific evidence, we maintain that in the general and notorious public scandals involved in the actions of the corrupt Judges, there is ground enough for their removal. If the Legislature does not get rid of these Judges before it rises, we shall see an exercise of tyranny in the case of law [illegible] Congress, and there is no safety for the Judiciary while they remain on the Bench. We earnestly ask the Legislature to attend to this subject. A few days more will be of little use to us, unless we once more render it possible to secure justice in our Courts.

Mr. MARR has drawn some excellent likenesses of CARL SCHURZ, the man whom curiosity seeks that of WASHBURN and GRAY into the shade—side the Nation scamp—in the new number of Harper's Weekly. We see SCHURZ trying to incite Germany to take vengeance upon the United States for our alleged breach of neutrality, and on another page we have a series of sketches taken in the Senate, in all of which the man of the unquelling heart, &c., &c., is depicted to the utmost advantage. It is no doubt the height of profanity to caricature that blessed angel SCHURZ, but Mr. MARR has done it, and in the present depraved state of mankind, people will be found to laugh heartily at those pictures. We hear, by the bye, that Mr. MARR has been engaged to make sketches of some of our public men for Vanity Fair, the well-known English publication—an excellent thought of the conductors of that journal.

State Senator WOOD makes no sign of doing the only thing which he can do after the report of Messrs. AMES and ALLEN—placing his resignation in the hands of the Senate. We are far from urging that the Senate ought to refrain from formally expelling a member who has been morally, if not legally convicted of taking bribes from TWEED and GOULD. The curse of the Legislatures of 1870-71 was the purchasable Republicans who sat in them. From the Democrats we knew what to expect, but while corrupt men were found among the party which had to oppose the swindling legislation of Tammany, it was obviously impossible to defeat any scheme, however infamous. It is clear that Senator WOOD has belonged to this class, and while he would best consult his own self-respect by immediately resigning, it is a fair question for his associates to consider whether they would not best consult the dignity of the Senate by formally expelling him. The Tribune says it knows of other Senators equally guilty. If it has the slightest concern for public decency or public justice let it reveal the names, instead of holding them back as a menace in the interests of Senator FORTON.

Senator SCHURZ appeared again yesterday, as counsel for Germany, before the Senate Committee inquiring into the sale of arms. He has a pleasant habit, it appears, of putting words into the mouths of witnesses, and then telegraphing his questions as their answers to all parts of the country. This disgraceful trick aroused the indignation of the Chairman, Senator HAMLIN, and yesterday he remonstrated with SCHURZ—a piece of presumption which will bring down on Mr. HAMLIN's head the fire wrath of all SCHURZ's "organs," and cause him to be denounced as a disgrace to the country. But people generally will recognize the justice of Senator HAMLIN's protest against a pettifogging trick, and the counsel for Germany will be obliged to keep within decent bounds. Under these circumstances, we may expect to see him at any moment throwing up his case, and accusing the Committee of being in league with thieves, &c.

Are the people aware that HAGERTY, the voucher-thief, still holds the position of Janitor of the new Court-house, and that his family occupy elegant apartments, copiously supplied with INGRAHAM'S carpets, in that very costly building? It was highly considerate and thoughtful of Chamberlain BRADLEY to get a special clause inserted in the County Tax Levy of 1870 giving him the power of appointing the Court-house Janitor. Then, when he had found a man admirably fitted for any dirty work that might be required, and who, in fact, did perform a highly valuable service to the Ring, it was equally creditable to the head and the heart of the "respectable" BRADLEY to continue to pay this faithful servant $2,000 a year of public money, even after his excessive devotion had brought him to a cell in the Tombs. When Mr. F. A. PARMER, President of the Broadway Bank, and lessor of a stable-lot to the City at a rental of $18,000 a year, was appointed Chamberlain, he stated his intention of putting an end to what some people considered a public scandal. He thought better of it, however, and HAGERTY has the satisfaction of living in the Tombs at the public expense, of having his family accommodated rent free by a grateful community, and of drawing public money to assist him in defending the case which the people have against him.

What has become of the bill introduced into the Assembly by Mr. MACKAY removing the Tammany Court-house Commissioners? One would imagine that a Republican Legislature need have no difficulty in making up its mind to discuss the following precious set of worthies:

Commissioners of County Court-house—Tweed, Connolly, Michael Norton, James E. Ingersoll, John J. Walsh.

Commissioners of Third District Court-house—Thomas Canary, (partner of Mike Norton;) John Cox, (Justice of the Court;) E. J. Shandley, (Justice of the Court.)

Commissioners of Ninth District Court-house—Wm. M. Tweed, Josiah Porter, (Justice of the Court;) John McQuade, (Justice of the Court.)

Would the people of New-York like to hear of these men getting control once more of the spending of their money? Yet, until the Legislature removes them, they have a legal right to make requisitions upon the Controller for the issue of bonds, &c. Let the Republicans at Albany take note of it; we cannot wait till these parties go out under the new charter, they must be kicked out.

The extent to which the suffrage had become corrupted under the tuition and example of Tammany is forcibly set forth in the report of the meeting of the Republican [illegible] Assembly District. It will be perceived that [illegible] were participated in by Democrats and Republicans. Brooklyn is a likely place for a good Registry law and for efficient Police.

The "Movement" Movement.

The "Movement" "Movement," now in fashion, like to call it, is the scene of much bustering and discontent among those who are looking to it to further their special ends. It was originally the work of the radical reformers of Missouri, and the plain doctrine set forth on the subject of the tariff, by the Lexington meeting which called it, was freely commented on by Democrats and Republicans free traders as an element of great importance in the scheme. But there is now a movement on foot to eliminate this element in the interest of the discontented Republicans who find it inconvenient to accept it. A prominent advocate of the Cincinnati meeting declares publicly that "Republican politicians who have no single bond of union with the 'Liberal Republicans,' except their dissatisfaction with the present Administration, have offered to join the movement, and are even now negotiating for a place on the Cincinnati ticket, to be given to the most conspicuous enemy of tariff reform in the country."

On the other hand, the Democrats are straining every nerve to get control of the movement, and to be able to engineer it in such a manner as to bring grist to their mill. The advocates of the passive policy are seeking to induce the Convention to make a nomination, and one that the Democracy can be prevailed on to follow. The more pronounced Democrats are also at work seeking a nomination, but one which, while it might possibly draw a few votes from the Republican candidate in doubtful States, would be of a character that the Democrats could not be asked to put up with. Strange to say, all these factions find in the result of the New-Hampshire election ample confirmation of their particular arguments. At the rate that the scramble is now going on, there is positively no limit that can be put to the number of contending cliques which will appear at Cincinnati. It will be little short of a political menagerie, in which each species of Republican and Democratic animal will be represented. If they show half the obstinacy in quarreling with each other that they have shown in opposing the great body of their fellow-citizens on the question of Gen. GRANT's re-election, they will be very far from being a "happy family."

Meanwhile, the Republican Party proceeds with the business of the hour with no sign of concern as to the upshot of the Cincinnati trick. State after State is selecting its delegates to the National Convention, with entire unanimity as to the action which that Convention should take on the Presidency, and as to the principles it should announce. The party organization never showed itself more capable of responding to the real wishes of the party, and never worked with less of real or apparent friction, and no Convention ever embodied the general views of the people more completely than the Republican Convention of this year bids fair to do.

Our Pacific Trade.

The interesting debate in the House of Representatives on Tuesday, relating to the mail service to China and Japan, will be carefully read all over the country, and the fate of Mr. CONGER's amendment will be watched with interest. Mr. CONGER offered an amendment to the Post-office bill, proposing to double the subsidy for the mail service to China, provided that the service be made semi-monthly, and in ships of American construction. It is observable that the debate derives additional interest and importance from the circumstance that Secretary ROBESON's Report, embodying very strong recommendations for the encouragement of our steam commerce in the Pacific, was sent in to the House on the following day.

In the discussion that followed Mr. CONGER's motion, we find that Mr. BUTLER of Massachusetts, Mr. KERR of Indiana, and Mr. WOOD of New-York were strongly opposed to it; and that Mr. SARGENT of California, Mr. GARFIELD of Ohio, Mr. BROOKS of New-York, Mr. DAWES of Massachusetts, and Mr. KELLEY of Pennsylvania, were strenuously in its behalf. Mr. SARGENT assured the House that, were the subsidy given, the steam-ship service from California to China and Japan would be instantly increased from one to three trips a month, without further expense to Government, and that in two years the service would be weekly. He showed that the amount granted to the "P. and O." Company by the English Government is more than four times, in gold, what is now received by our Transpacific service; and demonstrated that the amount of revenue derived from the trade with China, carried on through the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company, more than repaid the Government for the subsidy allowed to it. Mr. BROOKS, who has lately been all over the ground in person, declared that a struggle was now going on between Great Britain and this country for the vast trade of these Eastern seas, and that it concerned our Government to give every possible encouragement in that struggle to our own flag. He entreated the House not to look on the question as one of mere money, or private interest, or of party, but as one of great national importance. It was a matter involving the trade of over six hundred millions of people, and would certainly involve the future wealth and prosperity of our whole country.

Mr. GARFIELD said he was opposed to subsidies on general principles, and should continue to be opposed to them. But he believed that there were such special facts surrounding the question of trade on the Pacific Ocean that Congress dare not, in view of the situation, neglect it. No less emphatic, in the same direction, were the views expressed by Mr. DAWES. He had no hesitation in saying that he knew of no such judicious appropriation of money as that which would add to the channels of trade, and gather into the Custom-house of this country those revenues which would otherwise go to other countries to enrich their merchants, their shipping, and their people. The arguments of other gentlemen favoring the amendment were in much the same strain, and, judging from the debate, it is probable that the general feeling of the House is strongly in its favor. The report of Secretary ROBESON, so far as it deals with the subject, is, if possible, even more emphatic and unequivocal. He urges that the commercial needs of the people of the Pacific slope are of an imperious character; that these needs are imperfectly provided for; and that it is the duty of the National Legislature to devise and encourage means for their relief. "Their productions," writes Mr. ROBESON, "increasing from day to day, have forced the opening of new markets across an ocean twice as broad as the Atlantic; and, if the past is permitted to speak for the future, the extent of that trade, properly fostered, within the next half century, can hardly be estimated." Mr. ROBESON devotes much space to show that the extension of the aid he recommends is consistent with the spirit and powers of our Government, and that "it may certainly be given without violation of constitutional principles or Government policy."

The grand objection to Mr. CONGER's amendment will be, that it helps the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company. That its adoption will have that effect cannot be disputed. But ought this to be a conclusive barrier to its adoption? If it tends to give a powerful stimulus to our Pacific trade, and of this there can be no doubt, and thus to enrich the whole country, we might surely bear up under the reflection that the Steam-ship Company got some advantage at the same time. This consideration will not fail, however, to be rightly estimated by the experienced legislators who are clearly giving the subject their best thought, and the country will certainly be willing to abide by their decision.

Tom Fields' Little Joker.

TOM FIELDS, smitten with a sudden fever for reform, and calling upon the Assembly to investigate the Corporation Counsel's office, is a curious and editying spectacle. We must confess to a slight suspicion of his eleventh-hour zeal. Intrepid dwellers in the rural districts have sometimes matched a fearful joy at fair or circus or militia muster, from the singular and exciting game, known as "the little joker." It is played with three thimbles, under one of which is placed a pea, and the game is to point out this particular thimble. Now this would not greatly tax the resources of the rustic mind, nor afford, perhaps, very exciting sport, were it not for the odd circumstance that when the intelligent bystander has picked out the thimble where he knows the pea to be, and backed his choice to win, the thimble is lifted and the pea is never there.

We do not know whether Mr. FIELDS has ever tasted the delights of this intellectual and fascinating pastime. But a modification of it he seems inclined to introduce for the amusement of the Assembly. Some time since, if we mistake not, Mr. FLAMMER offered a resolution, calling upon the Judiciary Committee to inquire into matters in the Corporation Counsel's office. We strongly suspect that Mr. FIELDS' resolution will be found to be an empty thimble, designed only to divert attention from this. Let the Assembly back Mr. FLAMMER's thimble by all means.

Certainly, as the facts we published the other day show, the Corporation Counsel's office is an urgent need of legislative attention. And when the Investigating Committee does sit, it should not fail to explore the instructive history of the Street Opening Ring, which, for years past, is said to have found in that office a perfect El Dorado of easy wealth. Let it not neglect, above all, to trace with care the devious windings of that golden stream which has been flowing out so lavishly and so ceaselessly under Mr. O'GORMAN's virtuous eye. The Committee, we trust, will also inquire how that poor gentleman fared in this magnificent distribution of fortunes. It would be a pity, indeed, if, while clerks and surveyors and obscure underlings of all sorts were gleefully pocketing dollars by the hundred thousand, the master of the feast alone should go empty away. Two millions of dollars harvested in the Corporation Counsel's office in five years, and not a dollar for its noble chief! The notion is humiliating, but if it shall prove to be true, we trust that the Legislature will at once pass a special act requiring EDWARD J. WILSON, GEORGE W. PUSSER, EDWARD BOYLE, and the rest of the lucky ones, to pay over to our modern Poor Richard his fair proportion of the spoils. Honor among—street-openers. Before this happens, however, let the Committee listen to the woful tale of Mr. EDWARD J. WILSON, whose honest share of the plunder, it is said, has been sadly docked by the rapacity of his worthy colleagues, and who is, therefore, not unwilling to tell all he knows about street-openings. Then our sympathy for the impoverished Corporation Counsel may be abated. And when they have finished with the Corporation Counsel, perhaps the Committee will take a look into the Corporation Attorney's office. Doubtless Mr. FIELDS' modesty forbids him to include that in his resolution.

Dreams and Crime.

No man doubts the insanity of the poor wretch MARQUARDT, who killed his wife a few days since, after having, with her aid, murdered their three children. The peculiar sort of religious insanity under which he labored is by no means rare. The symptoms exhibited both by himself and his wife have been often noticed in other religious maniacs. The homicidal tendencies of these persons when insanity is produced by morbid religious feelings, are well known to all physicians who are familiar with insanity. It would be interesting to trace the origin of these fancies. The uniformity with which religious maniacs insist upon sacrificing themselves, and the frequency with which they manifest murderous designs, would seem to point to some common cause. Insanity has, as it been, in the estimation of most men, the very type of lawlessness, but it is not impossible that some kind of sympathy may yet be shown to criminals from uniform causes.

This, however, is subject for the investigation of the physicians. There is another feature of the Marquardt tragedy which invites the comment of the laymen—and that is the curious fact that the maniac, according to his own story, acted throughout like one under the influence of a dream. It is a characteristic of this dreamer that his successive ideas are determined by trivial causes. The waking man pursues a train of thought without heeding the intrusion of ideas which have no connection with it. The man in a dream may enter upon a process of reasoning, but the slightest suggestion conveyed to him through his dulled senses, or originating spontaneously in his brain, is sufficient to turn aside the current of his thoughts. He may be dreaming, for example, that he is in a bookstore, and that he notices a knife lying on the counter. The natural association between knives and dinner will probably abruptly change his vision, and in an instant he may imagine himself seated at the dinner-table. This peculiarity of dreams is familiar to every one, and the similarity between the mental processes of MARQUARDT, on the night when he committed his hideous murders, and those of the average dreamer is worth notice.

In the interview with the representative of a Western journal, MARQUARDT told the whole story of that terrible night. Believing that his children were in the power of devils, he and his wife agreed that it was necessary to put them out of the world, and so rid them of demoniacal persecution. Accordingly they took the three youngest children and went out into the woods. Presently they came to a narrow path, and the man was at once reminded of the strait gate and narrow path of the Gospels. "All must come to this narrow gate," he said to his wife, and they turned aside into its gloomy depths. It was thickly set about with thorns, and the maniac was then led to say, "There is the thorny path to heaven." It was here that the children were killed, so that their souls might locate in heaven from the assaults of the devil. A pool of water was near at hand, and noticing it, the idea of purification immediately occurred to the lunatics. They stripped themselves, and after bathing returned to the house, where MARQUARDT finished the tragedy by strangling his wife, in order that she might accompany her children on the unknown road, which their innocent souls had already taken.

This reads precisely like the description of a dream. Whatever object arrested the attention of the maniac impelled his wild thoughts in a new direction. The narrow path for the moment dominates his mind, and he forgets the route which he had intended to take to turn aside, obedient to the religious idea awakened by the memory of a text in the Bible which the narrow path recalled. The thorns suggest some half-remembered lines in which the thorny path to heaven is described, and he at once is led by this association of ideas to select this spot as the place where his children shall be sent on their way to heaven. He washes himself, because the sight of water irresistibly impels him so to do; and when he reflects that his dead children are separated from their mother, he instantly conceives the idea of reuniting them by her death.

And through it all there is a further resemblance to the act of dreaming in the total want of any feeling of criminality or remorse which is evident in the man's conduct. The dreamer, as a rule, has no moral sense, and commits without fear or remorse acts from which, in his waking moments, he shrinks in horror. MARQUARDT killed his wife and children with the same deadness of morality and sentiment which he would have felt had the tragedy been in reality but the dream of his uneasy sleep. He is still dreaming—so far as his mental and moral condition is concerned, and the law will hold him as blameless as though he had never raised his hand against his family save in the fruitless imagination of his sleeping moments.

Who shall seize the secret that links the lunatic and the dreamer so closely together? Is the lunatic only a somnambulist, or is somnambulism the vestibule of the madhouse hell?

Oppression of Poor Unknown.

We regret to see that one or two Senators, from very intelligent districts in the interior of the State, have expressed themselves in opposition to one of the most humane and useful bills which have ever been before the Legislature. This is an act presented by the Children's Aid Society of this City, and drawn up with great care by Mr. C. E. WHITEHEAD, to protect and insure education for factory children of tender years. The benevolent visitors of this Association have ascertained that there is a vast number of children employed in the factories and trades of this City, and the rural districts, of very tender age, who never secure any education, and are growing up to swell that numerous illiterate class already such a source of danger to our free institutions. The careful investigations of these agents, as well as those of the National Commissioner of Education, show that there are trades in this City where from eight to ten thousand children under thirteen years are employed during ten hours a day; that infants as young as four and eight years are kept steadily at work by the greed of their parents; and that still other branches of business employ boys and girls from ten to twelve years by the thousand. In fact, they show that there is an army of young children, almost infants, who are laboring steadily at machines and in factories or shops, doing a man's full work with a child's strength, growing up thus, stunted and weakly in body and dwarfed in mind, to increase the mass of ignorance at the foundation of our society.

So imperfect, too, is the protection of these little ones from machinery, that the agent of the National Bureau of Education found in a night school, &c., of these young factory children who had lost their forefingers. The objections of all manufacturing communities to this, what with the greed of the parents, and the necessities of capitalists, the children of the poor are sacrificed. Paternal affection, and the humanity of employers do not protect them from exacting labors and excessive drudgery. In these miles of competition and trade, the little ones of the world are ground up as if only material for production. Great Britain, and then the New-England States, have seen this oppression of the children of the poor, and have legislated strenuously to protect them. The great manufacturing State of New-York alone has been behind-hand in this work of humanity. The present law, now before the Senate of this State, is framed carefully to protect the rights of the children, and not to hamper or annoy manufacturers. It provides first that no child whatever under ten years shall be employed for hire in any manufactory or mechanical shop, and no child under twelve, who cannot read intelligibly, under a penalty of five dollars per day during which the child is so employed. The parent or guardian authorizing such employment is also liable to a penalty of twenty dollars.

This provision ought to completely uproot the practice so common in this City, of working very young children without regard to their opportunities for education. The next section forbids, under a penalty of ten dollars for each offense, any child under sixteen being employed more than sixty hours in one week, or after 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, or on certain holidays mentioned. This certainly is a requisition which no reasonable person could object to. The next section, however, is the important one, requiring every child between the ages of ten and sixteen, employed in any factory or shop, to attend school at least three months of the year, and to bring a written certificate from his teacher to that effect; the law, however, permitting attendance at half-time schools or night-schools for six months, to take the place of the three months' day-attendance. In cases in which there is more than one child of this age in a family, and the Overseers of the Poor certify that the labor of such children is essential to the support of the family, then the three months' schooling may be taken in alternate months, or at night-schools. Very strict regulations are made as to the registers which manufacturers are obliged to keep, showing all the necessary facts in regard to the child and the certificates of his school attendance. Heavy penalties are fixed on the violation of all these regulations. Even the parent or guardian who releases the child from work to attend the three months' school, is fined five dollars for every week of non-attendance; and the teacher giving a false certificate is liable to one hundred dollars' fine.

By these provisions both employers and parents are forced to see that the children are sent to school, and hardship is prevented by allowing the substitute of night-school attendance. Careful provisions are also made in this act for the protection of the health of the children in factories, and to guard them against accidents from machinery, to which they are so exposed. To carry out the law a State officer is to be appointed by the Governor, to be called the "Inspector of Factory Children," whose duty it shall be to examine the different factories to aid in the enforcement of the law, and to report annually to the Legislature in regard to the condition of this large class of children. The suits under this act may be brought by this officer, or by the District-Attorney or the School Commissioners, or Commissioners of Charities, before any Justice of the Peace or any Court of Record. One-half of the penalties recovered are to be paid to the school fund of the county, and one-half to the informer.

It would be a disgrace to our civilization if this most humane and skillful act did not pass the Legislature. And for ourselves, apart from the humanity of its provisions, we shall hail its passage as the first step toward the great reform indispensable to this country—"compulsory education."

An Unnecessary "Investigation."

Said the New-York Tribune of March 4:

"Let us rejoice, then, that Congress and many Legislatures are giving so much time and thought to investigations. They might be much worse employed; they could hardly be better. Factions may suffer; reputations may be tarnished; gains may be retrenched; just houses may fall in price; but the public will be the gainer. . . . So let investigations be multiplied and vigorously prosecuted to the utmost!"

Said the Tribune of March 14:

"Senator CONKLING has not satisfied himself that his petty resolution inquiring into the recommendations to office, made by his fellow-Senators, should be judiciously strengthened."

Has the Tribune's ardor for investigations altogether evaporated in the course of eight days? The Tribune and its friends in the Senate have charged that the New-York Custom-house is filled with Senator CONKLING's appointees. In fact, Senator CONKLING has never made a single recommendation of any Custom-house official. The "liberal" Senators have inveighed loudly against the abuse of Federal patronage, in open disregard of the fact that among their own ranks will be found men whose chief grievance is their inability to dispense as much patronage as they desired. All this would appear to invite investigation, a manner of reaching the truth which the Tribune cannot, under such circumstances, regard with favor. When the results of such an inquiry are fairly reached, the Tribune will still be able to treat them as it did the report of the Bowling-green Bank Depositors' Committee about its friend, HANK SMITH—ignore them.

MINOR TOPICS.

On the basis of Controller GROSS's memorial, the Senate Committee on Cities have reported a bill fixing the Tax Levy for the year at two and three-quarters per cent, being about a sum of about thirty millions of dollars, for the City and County expenditures of the year. We trust that in considering this Estimate, the Legislature will not leave the statements of the Controller that several of the estimates of the Departments are too high, and the former reminder that "as government is more economical, taxes are lighted Departments, because [illegible] numerous offices and other bodies, spending money without doubt only independently of paying it. Rather economy must be practiced to a higher extent in some most unwelcomely fashionable." If we can save taxes with a lower rate of taxation, let the Controller be empowered to show where retrenchment can be effected.

We have received from Police Commissioner HANK SMITH a letter, in which he says, with regard to the case of the woman in-mate who claimed his acquaintance, and was expected to have been arrested from justice by his intervention: "I do not now know, and never did know, the person alluded to in the article. By reason of severe indispositions, I have been unable to attend to business for several days past, and did not, therefore, know or hear of the case in question prior to my date. I have, therefore, no personal knowledge of the merits or demerits of the case to which you give such editorial prominence." We are very glad to give prominence to this very comprehensive disclaimer of HANK SMITH of any connection with a case which now becomes more suspicious than ever. We trust that his indisposition has sufficiently abated to permit him to make a searching investigation into the origin of so damaging and widely circulated a report. Were the Police concerned in the affair willing or unwilling believers in the woman's alleged intimacy with the President of the Board, and who are really responsible for the endeavor to keep the details from the public, and for the unsuccessful attempt to keep the case out of Court? After Police Commissioner SMITH has fulfilled his official duty by getting at these facts, he may possibly find leisure to tell us what he knows about the disposal of the funds belonging to policemen's widows, and of those subscribed by the force in behalf of the Chicago sufferers.

The friends of Register DWIGHT, who adjourned the meeting of the creditors of the Market Savings Bank on Wednesday last, and so prevented the election of an assignee until the 18th of April, take exception to the comments of the Press upon the matter. The nearly unanimous feeling of the creditors was that this postponement was an injury to their interests, and it was only natural that Mr. DWIGHT should be held accountable for it. His defense, however, seems to be a good one, inasmuch as he had no option but to postpone the election, until the notices of the meeting had been properly served. The person who undertook to serve those notices, however, cannot be so easily excused. The claims of the creditors were all proved prior to the 26th of February, and the plea that the mailing of two thousand printed notices could not be done in less time than a month is simple nonsense. A few hours would have sufficed to direct the notices and deposit them in the Post-office. In a matter where there has been so much fraud as there has been in the failure of the Market Bank, the failure to notify the creditors of the meeting, thus postponing for another month their chances of recovering any part of their money, will be viewed with suspicion—whether or not that suspicion is fully justified.

Promptness of action is a characteristic of Americans. They do not waste time when there is money to be made, an obnoxious enemy to be killed, or any other duty to be performed. In Cuba, where the vendetta is a nearly sacred institution, a private war may be carried on between two families for a century, and the belligerents will be entirely content if one man is killed once in thirty years. Note on the other hand the energy which the American infuses into his local feuds. The other day an American, somewhere in Arizona, was killed by a Mexican. His friends wasted no time, but instantly went out and shot a casual Mexican. The Mexicans, who, though a degenerate race, still have some of the virtues of republicans, collected their forces and sacrificed another American. In monarchical Cuba, the matter would have rested here for a half century at least. In free Arizona, what did these spirited Americans do? They instantly made a raid on a Mexican settlement, and killed four men in the handsomest style, and when a fifth man sought refuge in a town and declined to come out and be shot, they blew up the house and shot the man, doubtless as he was sailing through the air. Such is the energy and promptness of the noble borderers of the West.

In another column of the TIMES our readers will find a letter on the subject of International Copyright, from a point of view not generally considered, either by the advocates or the opponents of that measure. The writer takes the ground that an author's right in his book is not, like ownership in land or other material property, a natural and inalienable, but an acquired and artificial right, granted by the State for a specific purpose and for a limited time. This is the case in all countries where copyright exists. It is a right created by law, which would cease to exist were the law repealed. Hence our correspondent concludes that the plea for an International Copyright, based on the assumption of "moral" right and the inalienable ownership of the foreign author in his book, must be dismissed, and the subject discussed from the more practical standpoint of constitutionality and expediency; and should it be found that such a measure would retard instead of promoting "the progress of science and the useful arts" among the people, then Congress, in obedience to constitutional obligations and the interests of the people, must refrain from special legislation in favor of foreign authors. The subject is one of vast importance to this country, and legislation upon it cannot be too well considered.

The practice of supporting useless and insignificant newspapers out of the public Treasury, by giving them a share of the public advertising, was one of the many ways in which the Ring squandered the money of the tax-payers. It seems that this little game is familiar to the staid and respectable people of New-Jersey. A score of miserable little local sheets have been kept alive for some years past by the State advertising; and as there is now danger that the present fashion of reform will cut off their supplies, these little journals are blowing their feeble whistles loudly, in the hope of drowning the cry for reform. It is only repeating a self-evident truth to say that the public advertising should be governed by the same rule as that which dictates to ordinary men the choice of an advertising medium. To publish advertisements in papers which have no circulation is simply to squander money and to betrayal the interests to partisan and personal ends.

Look out for spicy reading in the TIMES on Monday next. The "Beecher-Tilton Scandal" will be found to include a rich array of persons, facts, and an endless variety of other gossip will be provided.

LEGISLATIVE INQUIRY.

Investigations in Washington and Albany Yesterday.

Senator Schurz Rebuked by the Chairman of the Senate Arms Committee—Mr. Crosswell Vindicated—The Committee on the Navy—Judiciary and Printing Investigations.

THE ARMS INVESTIGATION.

The Sale of Arms—How the Contract With Garrison Fell Through—Senator Schurz Rebuked.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The Senate arms investigation today was occupied with the examination of Brevet Col. SILAS CRISPIN, who conducted the great majority of the sales in New-York. There were no material developments beyond the testimony of this officer before the House Committee, already given in the TIMES at length. He testified positively that he never made or recommended sales to any parties known to be French agents; that he knew of no officer of the Government interested in the sales; that he himself made the sale to TROU. RICHARDSON, and did not as the time know him to be an agent of REMINGTON & SONS. The chief point sought to be made in the cross-examination by Mr. SCHURZ was that the delivery on the sales to REMINGTON of Oct. 13 and 15 ought to have been stopped, but were not because of the desire of the Department to aid the French agents. The witnesses having testified that they regarded the Department bound by its contracts, SCHURZ sought to show that this was not true, and proceeded in his adroit way to instance a case, and to place a perverted statement of the facts in the mouth of the witness, and to ask him to swear to it. These tactics have been so uniformly resorted to by the Prosecuting Attorney during the investigation thus far, that the Committee has become disgusted, especially as the members have frequently seen that these cunning questions, with their perverted answers, have been regularly telegraphed over the country as established facts. It will not surprise people, therefore, to read the following remarkable passage which took place in the Committee-room this morning. Let it be remembered that the conduct which elicited this indignant rebuke of the Chairman is but a specimen of the whole.

Q—By Mr. SCHURZ—Do you remember a bargain made between the Department and C. K. GARRISON about 30,000 Enfield rifles? A.—Yes, Sir.

Q—Was not there the margin put up by C. K. GARRISON? A.—C. K. GARRISON put up that margin.

Q.—Did not afterward the bargain go back in consequence of the Government not delivering the guns? A.—No, Sir.

Q—Why was it? A.—Because the purchaser failed to take the guns; for that reason the bargain was not consummated.

Q.—By Mr. SAWYER—He did not fulfill his part of the contract? A.—He did not fulfill his part of the contract; the guns are in our possession today; we were willing to deliver them any time.

Q—Did he ever make any complaint of the action of the Government on his part? A.—Never.

Q.—By Mr. SCHURZ—It appears by the correspondence that the Government was ready to give GARRISON, so that it seems that contract was cancelled finally in consequence of the failure of the Government of the United States? A.—If you will look at my indorsement you will see the facts.

The Chairman to Mr. SCHURZ—When the witness testified that it was not so, why should you ask him a question assuming that it was so, and then telegraph to the reporter sitting back of you on the sofa to have it telegraphed all over the country?

Mr. SCHURZ—We are going over the whole case. What I mean to show is this, that here a contract was cancelled.

The CHAIRMAN—No, Sir; you put in words that it was cancelled by the Government, when the witness testifies that it was cancelled by the other party by his refusing to receive the arms. I am only stating what the witness said. Then, when he had said this, you put a statement directly the opposite, and telegraphed to the reporter back of you, who, I suppose, is to send a garbled extract all over the country.

Mr. SCHURZ—This is not a garbled extract. I was about reading the correspondence, if, however, I cannot ask a question.

The CHAIRMAN—You may ask any question; but the art put in the witness' mouth things that he never said.

The WITNESS—My construction of it is that GARRISON failed to take the guns; failed to put up his money. We would gladly have accepted the money. He put up his margin but failed to complete the purchase.

Mr. ARNO—And you do not believe until you get the purchase money? A.—Never; cash is the universal rule.

Mr. SCHURZ—Here is your own letter in reference to the return of a margin. Look at the date.

The WITNESS—The sale had failed and fallen through by the action of the purchaser in not putting up the money. We had to have put it up, and the Government was left with these goods on its hands; he naturally makes complaint, and an effort to get his margin back again; he not then wanting the goods, that is the whole transaction as I understand it.

Q.—Do you not give the whole history of that transaction in this letter which you wrote to Washington? A.—I suppose so; I do not know exactly that I gave the history of it; I do not remember what I wrote there.

Q.—But we have in the testimony a series of letters concerning this whole case, which make it perfectly plain; for aught I know the Colonel is correct, but it is merely occurred to me this moment. [Mr. SCHURZ read the correspondence on pages 104, 105, 106 and 107 of the testimony, being a portion of the correspondence on exhibit No. 3.]

The Chairman—General, does not that correspondence show that there was a failure on the part of the purchaser to pay the money?

Mr. SCHURZ—What I indicated was this, that there was also, in consequence of Winter snows and so on, as Major CRISPIN in his letter states, a failure on the part of the United States to deliver as quickly as Mr. GARRISON had asked for deliveries.

Mr. ARNO—GARRISON in his letter says: "My case is one of serious hardship, and the Government will lose nothing by its action if it returns this margin to me."

The CHAIRMAN—The correspondence shows precisely that the witness testifies. You put words into the witness' mouth, General, assuming that then he said the contract was cancelled by the action of the Government, and not by the action of the party, and then turned to the reporter behind you and nodded. I have seen this every day.

Mr. SCHURZ—I do not think that was the purport of what I said. Certainly, it was cancelled by the action of the Government, the party, of course, asking for it.

Mr. SAWYER—The Government allowed it to be canceled at his request.

The WITNESS—The thing fell through by the failure of the party to fulfill his portion of the contract, by non-payment of the purchase money. Mr. SAWYER and GARRISON himself admits it.

THE NAVY DEPARTMENT.

Organization of the Committee on the Navy—The Accusers Unlled to Prove Their Charges.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The Select Committee on the investigation into the charges against the Navy Department, met this morning and organized. After considerable discussion as to what direction they should look for the facts to sustain the allegations made, the Chairman was directed to notify the editors of the New-York Sun that they would be ready on Thursday morning of next week to hear what they had to say in support of the allegations, and to receive the names of witnesses who can furnish the facts. Many people here cannot but think it is going to the very verge of decency to ask for facts from such a source.

THE POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Crosswell Vindicated.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The Senate Committee on Post-offices and Post-roads, at their meeting today, considered the House bill which prohibits close bidding in mail contracts, and agreed to favorably report the same with unanimity. This is the result of the first investigation that has any of the Departments, which has been completed. In this case the Postmaster-General is not only vindicated, but the man who brought the charges have revoked imputations which they had made against the ex-officer.

THE NEW-YORK CUSTOM-HOUSE.

Testimony of the Naval Officer—Mere Formalities in Minor Matters.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 14.—The New-York Custom-House Committee met this morning, when a letter was read from C. W. H. SCHULZE reaffirming his testimony that KEMPER and he came to his store to examine his books on account of information derived from a Custom-house official, &c. Other letters were laid before the Committee, including one from TRAMBAYLLE, to the effect that KEMPER was ready to say that SCHULZE was wrong in every particular.

The Committee decided that KEMPER, KEMPER and VAN ROSSAM should recommitted to the Committee by affidavit that subject.

A. H. LEWIS, Naval Officer of New-York, testified as to his duties, saying that he has under him sixty-nine clerks and three messengers. He was not aware any of them had received pay except under the provisions of law.

On a cross-examination by Senator CAMERON he further explained the connection of his office with that of the Collector, and the specific duties performed. He recalled that some time ago he gave direction to Col. BURR to drop for his (LAWLER's) information a record of the errors discovered in the papers from the Custom-house which passed through his office; such errors might occur in the estimating of duties on certain styles of goods; some of these errors were in favor of and others against the Government, amounting in the aggregate to $1,000,000 within the period of nine months; the errors against the Government amounted to $600,000 or $700,000; this was in the examination of papers in the Entry and Liquidation Division; the mistakes arose more from technical than from corrupt motives or judgment; the Naval Office exercised a supervisory control over the Collector's Department.

The Committee took a recess from 12 to 1 o'clock.

On reassembling, Mr. CASSERLY resumed the cross-examination of Mr. LAWLER, by saying he had been informed there had been considerable in other divisions. Witness could not furnish details of the corrections, and did not know what took place in the Collector's office as to the correction of errors; when an error was discovered by the Naval Office the corresponding clerk would call the attention of the corresponding clerk in the Collectors Office to the fact; this was done verbally; witness had represented to the Collector that they had been careless. He repeated that he was not aware that any of his clerks had received money for work performed out of office hours. Clerks were not compelled to take work home with them, and he would not, therefore, find fault with them if they confined themselves to regular hours.

On being cross-examined by Senator EDMUNDS, he said he received an annual one-sixth of the amounts collected for violation of the Revenue laws.

In reply to Senator PRATT, the witness said his clerks are appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury on the recommendation of the Naval Officer. He knew of no other reason for clerks performing work out of office hours than the desire to keep up the business of their desks.

Senator EDMUNDS asked witness whether patronage had been used as an instrument for controlling the Republican State Convention, when he replied: It had not in his office; he was a delegate to the Convention of 1868, but not to that of 1871; he attended the latter, but did not notice a larger number of Custom-house officers present than in previous years; there were not there to an unusual number; though he did not make a numerical count; no man from his office went to the Convention at his suggestion or with his approval; it did not occur to him that a single one was there; for himself, he went there to take part; he was also at Albany on the organization of the Legislature, and his business there was in connection with that subject; he had no knowledge that patronage of the Custom house was used to control the primary elections; about twenty-three changes had taken place in his office since he took charge of it, either by resignations or removal; the principal men, with the exception of the deputy, he appointed two or three weeks ago, and the others at a later date; he was willing his appointments should be scrutinized according to the strict rule of civil service reform; the men in his office, he hoped, lived up to their professions of Republicanism.

On cross-examination by Senator HOWE, he said, when at the State Convention of 1871, he supported HORACE GREELEY for Governor; as far as he knew, the Custom-house officers there did the same; he had neither made nor proposed to make any appointments as a reward for political service rendered at the last State Convention; he removed three of his clerks for violation of law, and others because their habits were bad.

Other gentlemen of the Committee interrogated the witness.

In reply to a question by Senator HOWE, he said Senator CONKLING had never intimated a desire that he should remove or appoint a single person to office in his department.

Senator CASSERLY referred to the fact that Mr. LAWLER had stated that he had his office deputy Col. BURR, who was once on the staff of Gov. FENTON. Did the witness mean to say that BURR was now a Fenton man? The witness responded in the affirmative. He was further asked if there were others in his office of the same political preference. Not having canvassed the matter, he could not speak positively. In answer to the question whether there were not divisions in the Republican Party, witness replied that the members of that party were not always agreed in political attachments, and in response to an interrogatory as to whether there was not a great feud between the friends of Mr. CONKLING and Gen. FENTON, he replied that he would not say there was a feud, although there were disagreements. The efficiency of the clerks in his office was of a high order, and he believed the clerks in the Collector's office were entitled to the same compliment. On the question of modesty, witness said that during the time he had been in office, he thought the clerks had been in receipt of from $18,000 to $19,000. Similar sums were paid to the Collector and Surveyor, and the interest got as much as all three together.

Senator HOWE also interrogated the witness regarding political influences, during which examination he said: "Large majority of the last Republican State Convention were in favor of the views entertained by the Custom-house officers, but the day after a change took place—the majority being reduced." In reply to Senator CASSERLY, witness said he believed money was used by the Tammany Republican Committee. The Committee then adjourned till tomorrow morning.

ALBANY INVESTIGATIONS.

Judiciary Investigation.

ALBANY, March 14.—The Judiciary Committee met today at 4 o'clock to hear argument in respect to the Police and Civil Justice bills. Ex-Judge C. S. BOSTWICK appeared in opposition to the bills on constitutional grounds. C. F. PIERCE replied. Judges WEISS, SHANDLEY, HOGAN, QUINN and KANE also addressed the Committee. The Committee agreed to hear further argument on behalf of Police Justices at the Fifth-avenue Hotel, New-York, on Tuesday, 19th inst., at 2 P. M.

Printing Investigating Committee.

ALBANY, March 14.—The Printing Investigation Committee had another session this afternoon. Wm. RICHARDSON took the stand and testified that the evidence given by THOS. GOODWIN at a former session concerning him and to the effect that he received a percentage from HARRY E. PLATT, was untrue; they no person ever, under any circumstances, paid him a cent as percentage for legislative disgrace work or printing of any description, or anything else. He also said at the close of his service the Assembly voted him $200 extra compensation, which he refused to take, and had not taken up to this time.

MAYOR HALL'S TRIAL.

What District-Attorney Sullivan and Mr. Smith Say—The Latest Rumors.

In an interview with Assistant District-Attorney SULLIVAN, he sketched out the action of the Court, today, as follows:

After the opening the jury will be called and the official announcement of the death of Mr. CLARK, the juror, will be made. The Court will then ask counsel on both sides what course they propose to pursue. Two courses will be open to them. The law permits the selection of a new juror, if counsel on both sides agree. If these be no agreement, the whole jury will be discharged, and will be read over to the prisoner charged, and the trial proceeded with. If both sides do not agree to the course the jury will be dismissed and the trial set down on the calendar in the ordinary way.

Ex-Recorder SMITH, counsel for Mayor HALL, said that counsel for the defense had not yet had a consultation. He stated that the trial, according to the ruling in the Cancemi murder case, could not go on with eleven jurors. Counsel would certainly not consent, in his opinion, to the impaneling of the place made vacant by the death of Mr. CLARK. They could only regard the matter in its present aspect as a mistrial, and would not agree to anything but the dismissal of the present jury. Mr. SMITH said he believed their side had lost much by the death of Mr. CLARK. It was rumored, yesterday, that a motion to remove the case into the Court of Oyer and Terminer would be made, and a Supreme Court Judge from the interior of the State called to hear it. It was also rumored that Judge DALY is anxious to resign his seat in favor of some other Judge, being worried with the already lengthy proceedings.

Democratic Reform.

The Twenty-first District Democratic Reform Association met last night at East Side Hall, Eighty-sixth-street and Third-avenue, and elected the following officers: Henry Clausen, Jr., President; Stephen Van Rostrand and Hilkia Kingsland, Vice-Presidents; James M. Stedman and George W. Tuttenson, Secretaries; Myer Stern, Treasurer; John Cuff, Sergeant-at-Arms.

ATTACK ON THE QUEEN.

The Sovereign Threatened by a Supposed Fenian—Prompt Measures Against the Offender.

From the London Times, March 4.

Yesterday afternoon an incident occurred, as the Queen was about to alight from her carriage at Buckingham Palace, on returning from a drive, calculated to inspire alarm and indignation, but which happily proved harmless. The Royal carriage had returned by way of Constitution-hill, and had entered the Palace about 6¾ o'clock, by the north gate, passing through what is called the Garden Gate into the inner court-yard. A large crowd, when the Police were removed, had gathered in the road and collected in front of the Palace to see the Queen, and cheered her as she entered. Her Majesty was attended by Lady CHURCHILL and had the usual escort, Major-Gen. Hon. A. HASTINGS and Lord CHARLES PELHAM being the Equerries. As the Queen was preparing to alight, a lad suddenly presented himself at the side of the carriage, holding a pistol in his hand and a pistol in the other. He cried at first, it is said, to attract the attention of Lady CHURCHILL, mistaking her, probably, for the Queen, by whose side she sat, and then appeared to be about to address himself to Her Majesty, young round the back of the carriage. When the Equerries and the Queen's personal attendant, JOHN BROWN, followed him and have him in the custody of the police-sergeant on duty at the time. The Queen showed no sign whatever of fear. The lad was immediately disarmed of the pistol which proved to be unloaded. It is an old-fashioned weapon, with a flint and steel lock, which was broken, and in the barrel a piece of greasy rag was found. He had also a knife in his possession and the paper to which reference has been made, which on examination was found to be a petition, written on parchment, for the release of the Fenian prisoners. He was taken forthwith to the Kensington Police Station, Westminster, where he was examined before Alderman O'CONNOR, and stated his age to be seventeen, adding that he was a clerk to Messrs. LEVETT & FRANKS, oil and colos manufacturers, No. 12 Blackman-street, Borough, and that he resided with his father and mother at No. 4 Church-row, Hoxton-road. He is an apprentice, and is well spoken of by his master. He wore a black felt hat, and was ordinarily well dressed in other respects for a person in his condition of life. He had managed to scale some iron railings, about ten feet high, at the points where the garden-wall abuts at a corner upon the Palace upon his northern side, and had passed through the shrubbery, which concealed approached, and, therefore, unchallenged. The theory of the Police is that he contrived to accomplish this feat at the moment they and the porter were engaged in keeping the entrance clear for the return of Her Majesty. He has united since his apprehension that he bought the pistol in a shop in the Borough, and that he is a grandson of the late Mr. FEARGUS O'CONNOR. He was seen last evening by Dr. BOND, the medical officer connected with the Police Station, and will probably be brought before a Magistrate for examination this morning, at the Bow-street Police-Court. Upon inquiring the pistol found upon the prisoner was, at the request of Mr. GLADSTONE, taken to the House of Commons, the better to enable him to answer anxious inquiries as to whether it was really unloaded when the prisoner was apprehended, and in the course of the evening seven members of Parliament called at the Station for the purpose of seeing the prisoner. Her Majesty's Ministers may very properly not complied with, he himself, moreover, showing much aversion from being seen in his cell by any one but the attendants.

THE PETITION.

The petition found upon the person of the prisoner ran thus:

"TO VICTORIA, Queen by the Grace of God, to make the following Gentlemen Knights: Whereas, we are of the Irish Fenian persuasion, and whereas, though that the Fenian prisoners, a number of men tried by birth, who are known and celebrated as the Fenian prisoners, and whereas, the Fenian prisoners have been in prison that ought to pardon by grace of my Government, and with my sanction, for the crime of high treason, the said Fenians having resisted and conquered nations my crown, understanding by such conquering over the Irish Nation; and my power, it is a well-known fact that the sympathetic are of the Irish people and the Nation have a various motive, motive, motive,

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

An extensive business was added at the Exchange yesterday, March 14, the attendance being large, and the sales effected were numerous and important. The following is a view of the proceedings, in which each of the additions of the day is referred to, but, as in several instances, some doubt exists as to whether the sale reported is of a bona-fide character, only such transactions are noted in the summary below as are known to be genuine:

MULLER, WILKINS & CO., at public auction, sold the four-story brown-stone house and lot, known as No. 360 West Fifty-seventh-street, south side, forty feet east of Ninth-avenue, for $22,000, the purchaser being F. A. BOCHMAN. Also, by order of the Supreme Court, under the direction of M. J. WALDSTEIN, Esq., referee, two full lots on the north side of Fifty-second-street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, for $2,300 each, and two lots on the south side of Forty-eighth-street, adjoining the above, in the rear, for $3,600 each, the purchaser of the first-mentioned being A. H. BRAMHAN, and of the second, M. H. HEMMENWAY. The same firm also sold, by order of the executor of JAMES THOMPSON, deceased, the following lots, at the prices noted: Three lots on the west side of First-avenue, 25 feet 9 inches north of One Hundred and Fifth-street, purchased by G. J. PHILLIPS for $6,300, (for the plot, one lot north side of One Hundred and Fifth-street, 100 feet west of First-avenue; purchased by J. J. FLYNN for $1,775. Three lots on One Hundred and Fifth-street, adjoining; purchased by Mr. PHILLIPS for $1,800 each, and two lots adjoining, bought by JOHN JENKINS for $1,700 each. Another lot belonging to the same estate, on the north-west corner of First-avenue and One Hundred and Fifth-street, although bid off for $2,150, was probably not sold. In addition, by order of the executors of SAMUEL LEGGETT, deceased, Messrs. MULLER & CO. also sold five lots, with back buildings upon the same, situate on the south side of East Twenty-fourth-street, twenty feet east of First-avenue, for $2,050 each; purchaser, C. J. WARD. For the following described property, owned by the same estate and located in the immediate vicinity bids as follows were received, but, as we are informed, probably without result. For two lots on the south-east corner of Fifth-avenue and Twenty-fourth-street, twenty feet east, $2,350 per lot; bid. For three lots adjoining on First-avenue, $7,700 each bid, for one lot adjoining, with stable on same, $2,100 bid. For three lots on south side of Twenty-fourth-street, 61.6 feet east of First-avenue, with four-story stone factory building on same, $7,100 per lot; bid. For two lots, 100 feet west of Twenty-third-street, adjoining above in the rear with portion of same building upon same, $6,000 per lot; bid. Other auctions, in charge of the same auctioneers, resulted as follows: For three-story and attic brick house and lot, No. 23 East Fourth-street, north side, between Lafayette-place and the Bowery, $22,500 bid, but probably not sold. For premises Nos. 26, 28 and 32 Greene-street, east side, between Canal and Grand streets, with brick houses on same, $32,500 bid, but no sale effected, and for four lots on the north-west corner of First-avenue and Eighty-fourth-street, $6,500 per lot, but without result.

R. H. LUDLOW & CO., by order of the executor of FRANCIS THOMPSON, deceased, disposed of the premises known as No. 19 East Twelfth-street, north side, between University-place and Fifth-avenue, embracing a two-story, attic and basement high-stoop brick house, 25 by 42.6, with extra size lot, 25 by about 120; sold to J. NATHAN for $22,000, and considered a bargain. The same firm also sold, by order of the executor, the three-story stone dwelling and lot known as No. 147 West Thirty-fourth-street, north side, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, but bids to the amount of only $12,500 being received, the property was withdrawn.

S. DINGEE, by order of the Supreme Court, in foreclosure, under the direction of Benjamin RAHM, Esq., referee, resold the four-story brick house and lot known as No. 23 St. Mark's-place, for $16,100; purchaser, HENRY WEHLER. This same property was sold at the Exchange Nov. 2, and purchased by the same buyer above named, at that auction, for $21,100; but some questions having come up, owing to the fact that the house abuts a few inches on the adjoining lot, a resale was had yesterday, with the result noted.

ALLEN & BROWN, at public auction, disposed of the three-story high-stoop brick house and lot known as No. 7 Varick-place or Sullivan-street, between Houston and Bleecker-street, for $12,200, the purchaser being JOHN SCHILLOHN. The same firm also offered at auction one lot on the east side of Tenth-avenue, 75 feet 6 inches south of Sixty-fourth-street, and four lots in the rear, on the south side of Sixty-fourth-street, but without effecting a sale, although bids to the amount of $5,500 were received for the avenue lot.

D. M. SEAMAN, by order of the Supreme Court in foreclosure, under the direction of BENJAMIN F. TODD, Esq., referee, sold a two-story and attic brick house and lot, located on the east side of Market-street, between Madison and Henry streets, for $10,000, purchaser Mrs. MARY CORNELL. Also, by order of the same Court, D. P. INGRAHAM, Jr., Esq., referee, the following property: The corner formed on the north-east corner of Madison and Thomas streets, 23 by 62.7 by 69.9 by 21.9; one lot, 25 by 75, on the north side of Warren-street, 50 feet north of College-place; three lots, each 25 by 75, known as No. 26 College-place and Nos. 66 and 68 Warren-street; four lots on the south-west corner of Chambers-street and College-place, each 25 by 100; 25 by 100; known as No. 26 College-place; one lot, 25 by 100, on the north side of Warren-street; one lot, 25 by 100, known as No. 12 Worth-street, south side, between Hudson-street and West Broadway, and one lot, 25 by 100, known as No. 46 Thomas-street. This sale was merely made for the purpose of performing the bidding, and, at the nominal bid of $200 the entire lot was struck off to Mr. H. VANDERBILT.

The closing sales of the day were made by JAMES M. MILLER, who, by order of trustees, sold the lease of two lots, with the four-story and basement brick building thereon, known as Nos. 227 and 229 West Twenty-second-street, south side, between Tenth and Eleventh-avenues, lots, together in size, 50 by 98.9; building, 30 by 50. The lease has twenty-one years to run from May 1, with covenant of renewal for a similar term; ground rent, $600 per annum; sold for $17,500; purchaser, THOMAS CARRIGAN. Mr. MILLER also sold the following property, in Newark, Orange, and East Orange, N. J., full details in regard to which, with prices realized, will be found below. He also offered at auction the hotel property known as the Jarvis Hotel, located at New-Brunswick, N. J., embracing a large plot of ground, containing about four acres, with a three-story brick hotel, a frame hotel and other buildings thereon, situate on the corner of Burnet-street and Commercial-avenue. For the property, bids, amounting to $9,250, were made, but not accepted, as we are informed, by those interested in the disposition of the property.

In reference to the sale of Capt. BOURTY's lots at Island City, Long Island, Mr. Aldrich, conducted yesterday by JERE. JOHNSON, Jr., auctioneer, particulars will be given to-morrow.

Today, at the Exchange, at a Sheriff's sale, WM. KERNELLY will dispose of the six-story brick house and lot on the north-west corner of Delancey and Norfolk streets, and at a Supreme Court sale in foreclosure, the same auctioneer, as is advertised, will also sell two building lots on Eleventh-avenue, between Ninety-sixth and Ninety-seventh streets.

At private sale, WM. TUCKER, No. 220 Fifth-avenue, reports having recently sold a house and lot (Sanford's) on the north side of East Forty-seventh-street, 60 feet west of Lexington-avenue, for $20,500. Purchaser, Mr. FELLOWS DAVIS.

BROOKLYN REFORM.

Mass-Meeting at the Academy of Music Last Night.

Report of the Citizens' Reform Committee of Seventy-Five.

Eleven Thousand Fraudulent Votes Counted in Last November Election—Report of the Legislative Committee—Addresses by Messrs. Dennis Barnes, Lowe, Woodford, McLain and Others.

At the Brooklyn Academy of Music was assembled last evening the respectable portion of the citizens of Brooklyn, to take part in a mass-meeting at which was presented the reports of the various committees appointed at and after the meeting of Nov. 20, 1871, for the purpose of investigating the frauds perpetrated at the Fall election, and bringing the offenders to justice. The stage, at the opening at the Academy, presented a forest scene, occupying its full extent, and the members of the Committee walked about as if really ranging among the trees. At 8 o'clock, however, the meeting began to organize, and the scene was changed to the inside of a drawing-room, the Committee taking their seats on chairs and sofas set apart for the purpose. FRANKLIN WOODRUFF was presiding officer, and the following gentlemen were among those upon the stage: Dennis Barnes, W. A. Colt, S. B. Dutcher, J. W. Stoops, Gen. Woodford, F. Woodruff, R. M. Whiting, Jr., J. T. Henry, H. E. Bowen, J. W. Grogan, S. Booth, E. J. Whitlock, M. Reynolds, A. J. Davis, S. Parkinson, H. Farrington, E. H. Johnston, Thomas Kinsella, A. J. Bailey, Winchester Britton, Julius Allen, Samuel McLean, H. B. Claflin, A. A. Low, W. W. Goodrich, George Kinkel, J. P. Hunter and others.

Mr. WOODRUFF, in opening the meeting, made a brief address, during which he said the Committee selected by the citizens to investigate the frauds had, by the aid of their subcommittees, discovered that over 10,000 illegal votes had been polled in November last; that many of the offenders had been brought to justice, some convicted and punished, and many more indicted. Efforts had been made to secure the enactment of a more stringent Registry law, and an amended charter by the Legislature. The Committee has devoted their time and talents to effect the reform, without regard to party, and to place in office, to secure to the people of Brooklyn a good government in the future. He then called on R. M. WHITING, the Secretary of the Committee, to read the address to the citizens of Brooklyn, which set forth the resolutions under which they were appointed, and observed that at the earliest stage of their investigation sufficient frauds committed at the last election were developed to justify the Committee in incurring large expenditures for the purpose of canvassing the city, with the object of ascertaining as nearly as possible the fraudulent vote cast, and in what localities. Some of the persons detected in committing frauds had been convicted and punished, and others were yet to be tried. As a means of protection in the future, the Committee have prepared and forwarded to Albany, an Election law, and in reporting to the people of this City, from whom it emanated, they ask the support and influence of their acts, and the voice of this meeting in favor of the passage of that law.

The Committee have also felt that they were not departing from the duty assigned to them, in proposing such amendments to the City Charter as shall abolish all special legislation in the interest of individual office-holders and political combinations, and restore to the people, and the officers elected by them, the power which has been absorbed by commissions. In conclusion, it advised every citizen to take an active part in politics as the only means to secure and maintain their freedom.

The report of the Executive Committee to the Citizens' Reform Committee of Brooklyn was then read. The report detailed the duties imposed upon the Committee in the investigation of election frauds, the condition of the public mind at the time, the detection of crime and the prosecution of some of the offenders. Statistics had showed there were cast 6,571 fraudulent votes, and from the evidence, as a whole, the fact that our elections have become a farce is clearly demonstrated. Whatever the voice of the people intended to be expressed by the ballot might be, is frustrated and thwarted by designing corrupt politicians, who combine and control the machinery of our primaries; then by organized gangs of repeaters, and shrewdly hired inspectors and canvassers, increase or decrease the opposing votes as they desire, and, finally, whichever way the scale might turn, their friends or foes are counted in or out, as they direct.

Hon. W. W. GOODRICH then read the following report of the Legislative Committee:

To the Citizens' Reform Committee:

The Legislative Committee report that, in pursuance of the instructions which you have from time to time given them, they have caused to be introduced into the Legislature such amendments to the organic laws of the city as in their judgment were designed to insure a more stringent and an honest administration of the public business.

These laws were:

First—An act to authorize the Mayor, Controller and Comptroller to appoint two Commissioners, in place of the present Water and Sewerage Commissioners, and to transfer the power of the new Board that it should be the agent of the Common Council, in carrying out all improvements, and not be itself the mover of such plans. The act was designed to be a temporary measure.

Second—A stringent Election law, which was drawn with particular reference to the peculiar necessities of the city.

Third—An amended charter. A large delegation from your Committee visited Albany and appeared before the Assembly Committee on Cities, when these acts were referred, for the purpose of securing their passage, but they have had expected to securing a report on any one of them.

Senator PRATT, who had introduced the Election Law into the Senate, has obtained a favorable report, and it will soon be considered in the Committee of the whole Senate.

It is to be hoped, however, that this bill will be laid aside by the reason of the introduction of a general Registry bill applicable to the several cities of the State. Your Committee believe that the bill proposed by Senator Pratt has passed substantially in its present form. Some of the main features, such as the appointment of a Board of Elections, the appointment (by each Board) of the inspectors, who were to be selected by the parties, and the clerks, who were not to be chosen from persons who were not qualified under the Federal, State or City Government, the description of each registered voter, a forfeiture of the right to vote unless registered, and the retention of the lists, being designed to guard with peculiar stringency the purity of the ballot, so shamefully violated at the recent election.

Your Committee believe that in this act lies the main hope of our people for a fair election and the well-directed effort of our Government, and they urge its general effort to secure its passage.

As to the charter, there has been a great amount of labor, if not the equal of the place, the property and [illegible]

The Committee, adopted as the leader of their work the charter of 1857, if not a little more to consult a number of the best features of the old one, and to incorporate into the new charter such laws which have been passed since its adoption, so as to make the system of city government harmonious, instead of a mass of incongruous, inconsistent and inconsistent statutes. The changes in the old system were believed to be rendered necessary on account of the increase of a city which had doubled its population since the passage of that charter.

The Committee have proposed that meanwhile a complete water and sewerage system, and a part of the private property, have been, at a large expense, added to the city's improvements, while its progress in public spirit and enterprise have changed the sleepy city of 1857 into the bustling, energetic and advancing city of 1872. These changes in the city to be governed required changes in the plan of government.

Second, the gradual withdrawal of the tax-paying citizens from active participation in political affairs, and left the management of the Government in a large measure to unworthy hands, that, aided by political organizations, a power has grown up and grasped and retained the rule [illegible] of the city.

With these views, the Committee recommend [illegible] the following changes in the charter:

To concentrate power in the hands of the Mayor and Common Council, and to make the heads of the departments of boards of all Departments not directly elected by the people, and to abolish all irresponsible Commissions.

Thirdly—As far as could legally be done, the city Departments, and to center their powers upon the Mayor.

To reduce the number of officials, and to give the Common Council the power of creating offices and determining salaries.

To concentrate all Departments, so far as possible, in the Common Council, which should order all public work, make all contracts, and direct the disbursement of funds.

To collect all taxes, water rates and assessments, by the same officer, and at the same time.

To forbid the holding of double offices by the same incumbent.

To give the Mayor an absolute veto of all ordinances appropriating money, and to prevent any salaries in the broad field of the city, except by a vote of two-thirds.

To demand monthly returns of expenditures by all Departments.

To prevent the sale of bonds, except upon public sale, and to prevent fraud.

To vacate interest in the city on all deposits of public money.

To abolish all fees and emoluments of public officers, except salaries.

To provide for such a civil service reform as should secure a class of officers in all public offices.

It was hoped that these large grants of power to the Common Council would arouse the public to the importance of securing a better class of Representatives in that body.

The charter has been introduced in both Houses, and remains in the hands of their respective committees.

Another important step in the method of administering local government, your Committee, in their last report, recommended, as the prominent object which called the Committee into being, and in compliance with which they other matters to which refer, have now made such amendment indeed. To [illegible] the Legislature, and who have made [illegible] the public mind, as well as the Committee, that the Legislature will make light of public [illegible] in the case of the Metropolitan Police Commissioners, which [illegible] to make a change, some of which, the [illegible] to be, in fact, all in fact. If the [illegible] the verdict of the [illegible] Legislature, a power has grown up and grasped [illegible] Government, [illegible] and retained the rule [illegible] of the city.

Hon. THOMAS COX, Chairman of the Committee, then read the following report of the Committee on Election Frauds:

To the Citizens' Reform Committee:

The Committee on Election Frauds, in pursuance of the instructions which you have from time to time given them, they have caused to be introduced into the Legislature such amendments to the organic laws of the city as in their judgment were designed to insure a more stringent and an honest administration of the public business.

It is to be hoped, however, that this bill will be laid aside by the reason of the introduction of a general Registry bill applicable to the several cities of the State. Your Committee believe that the bill proposed by Senator Pratt has passed substantially in its present form. Some of the main features, such as the appointment of a Board of Elections, the appointment (by each Board) of the inspectors, who were to be selected by the parties, and the clerks, who were not to be chosen from persons who were not qualified under the Federal, State or City Government, the description of each registered voter, a forfeiture of the right to vote unless registered, and the retention of the lists, being designed to guard with peculiar stringency the purity of the ballot, so shamefully violated at the recent election.

Your Committee believe that in this act lies the main hope of our people for a fair election and the well-directed effort of our Government, and they urge its general effort to secure its passage.

As to the charter, there has been a great amount of labor, if not the equal of the place, the property and [illegible]

The Committee, adopted as the leader of their work the charter of 1857, if not a little more to consult a number of the best features of the old one, and to incorporate into the new charter such laws which have been passed since its adoption, so as to make the system of city government harmonious, instead of a mass of incongruous, inconsistent and inconsistent statutes. The changes in the old system were believed to be rendered necessary on account of the increase of a city which had doubled its population since the passage of that charter.

The Committee have proposed that meanwhile a complete water and sewerage system, and a part of the private property, have been, at a large expense, added to the city's improvements, while its progress in public spirit and enterprise have changed the sleepy city of 1857 into the bustling, energetic and advancing city of 1872. These changes in the city to be governed required changes in the plan of government.

Second, the gradual withdrawal of the tax-paying citizens from active participation in political affairs, and left the management of the Government in a large measure to unworthy hands, that, aided by political organizations, a power has grown up and grasped and retained the rule [illegible] of the city.

With these views, the Committee recommend [illegible] the following changes in the charter:

To concentrate power in the hands of the Mayor and Common Council, and to make the heads of the departments of boards of all Departments not directly elected by the people, and to abolish all irresponsible Commissions.

Thirdly—As far as could legally be done, the city Departments, and to center their powers upon the Mayor.

To reduce the number of officials, and to give the Common Council the power of creating offices and determining salaries.

To concentrate all Departments, so far as possible, in the Common Council, which should order all public work, make all contracts, and direct the disbursement of funds.

To collect all taxes, water rates and assessments, by the same officer, and at the same time.

To forbid the holding of double offices by the same incumbent.

To give the Mayor an absolute veto of all ordinances appropriating money, and to prevent any salaries in the broad field of the city, except by a vote of two-thirds.

To demand monthly returns of expenditures by all Departments.

To prevent the sale of bonds, except upon public sale, and to prevent fraud.

To vacate interest in the city on all deposits of public money.

To abolish all fees and emoluments of public officers, except salaries.

To provide for such a civil service reform as should secure a class of officers in all public offices.

It was hoped that these large grants of power to the Common Council would arouse the public to the importance of securing a better class of Representatives in that body.

The charter has been introduced in both Houses, and remains in the hands of their respective committees.

Another important step in the method of administering local government, your Committee, in their last report, recommended, as the prominent object which called the Committee into being, and in compliance with which they other matters to which refer, have now made such amendment indeed. To [illegible] the Legislature, and who have made [illegible] the public mind, as well as the Committee, that the Legislature will make light of public [illegible] in the case of the Metropolitan Police Commissioners, which [illegible] to make a change, some of which, the [illegible] to be, in fact, all in fact. If the [illegible] the verdict of the [illegible] Legislature, a power has grown up and grasped [illegible] Government, [illegible] and retained the rule [illegible] of the city.

Hon. THOMAS COX, Chairman of the Committee, then read the following report of the Committee on Election Frauds:

To the Citizens' Reform Committee:

The Committee on Election Frauds, in pursuance of the instructions which you have from time to time given them, they have caused to be introduced into the Legislature such amendments to the organic laws of the city as in their judgment were designed to insure a more stringent and an honest administration of the public business.

These laws were:

First—An act to authorize the Mayor, Controller and Comptroller to appoint two Commissioners, in place of the present Water and Sewerage Commissioners, and to transfer the power of the new Board that it should be the agent of the Common Council, in carrying out all improvements, and not be itself the mover of such plans. The act was designed to be a temporary measure.

Second—A stringent Election law, which was drawn with particular reference to the peculiar necessities of the city.

Third—An amended charter. A large delegation from your Committee visited Albany and appeared before the Assembly Committee on Cities, when these acts were referred, for the purpose of securing their passage, but they have had expected to securing a report on any one of them.

Senator PRATT, who had introduced the Election Law into the Senate, has obtained a favorable report, and it will soon be considered in the Committee of the whole Senate.

It is to be hoped, however, that this bill will be laid aside by the reason of the introduction of a general Registry bill applicable to the several cities of the State. Your Committee believe that the bill proposed by Senator Pratt has passed substantially in its present form. Some of the main features, such as the appointment of a Board of Elections, the appointment (by each Board) of the inspectors, who were to be selected by the parties, and the clerks, who were not to be chosen from persons who were not qualified under the Federal, State or City Government, the description of each registered voter, a forfeiture of the right to vote unless registered, and the retention of the lists, being designed to guard with peculiar stringency the purity of the ballot, so shamefully violated at the recent election.
